"Big Five" Dominate Grocery Trade, Warning of Federal Trade Board

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Sounding the warning that if their power "remains unchecked" the "Big Five" Chicago meat packers may become "masters in any field they choose," the Federal Trade Commission today charged that the "Big Five" now handle a large per cent., in some cases nearly 50 per cent., of the country's total production of more than 200 foods unrelated to the meat packing industry either as products or by-products.

The charge was made in the fourth part of the commission's report to President Wilson on its investigation of the meat industry which was made public today. The "Big Five" packers, Armour, Swift, Wilson, Cudahy and Morris, have entered the wholesale grocery trade, the commission further charged, and in practically all the more important centres of distribution "they bid fair to dominate a field which a few years ago was almost exclusively occupied by the independent provision jobbers and wholesale grocer."

That the commission will recommend to President Wilson that he ask Congress to decide the extent to

Jackpots Must Pay Double Tribute in New York

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Poker and other gambling winnings will have to be included as income under the new State income tax law as well as the Federal law, Mark Graves, head of the income tax bureau, said that the Federal law taxed such an income, and while no official ruling had been made the State would follow the government's lead. Gambling losses will be deducted in estimating taxable incomes.

This is covered in the provision in the new State law which includes in items deducted from income net losses sustained in any transaction entered into for profit, though not connected with a trade or business, if not compensated for by insurance or otherwise.

BOY FOOTBALL PLAYER DIES OF INJURIES

The first football death of the season in Greater Boston took place today, when John Sheedy, sixteen, of No. 142 Dale street, Dedham, died at his home from cerebral hemorrhage resulting from injuries received in a football game last Monday.

Playing on the Dedham High School team, he was struck on the nose by the arm of another player. Neither he nor his comrades thought anything about the injury, which did not pain him. He attended school Tuesday and yesterday.

When he collapsed he was taken to a physician's office for first-aid treatment. Upon a more careful examination at his home, he was ordered to a hospital, but he died before the removal could take place.

He was a junior at Dedham High, active in sports and very popular with his fellow pupils. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Sheedy, and three sisters. His funeral will take place Saturday, with services at St. Mary's Church, Dedham.

67 MORE WARRANTS ASKED

Hanson Flays More Than 600 Gougers of Public for Weight Violations

While more than 600 grocers, butchers and peddlers summonsed to the State House were being given a verbal lashing by State Commissioner of Standards Thure Hanson, agents of the department today appeared in the courts asking for warrants for criminal prosecution of sixty-seven other retail dealers charged with "grosser and more flagrant" violations of the weights and measures laws.

The day's developments marked the culmination of the wholesale crusade to protect the public against short weights and measures.

Commissioner Hanson began his arraignment of the retail merchants in the auditorium of the State House this afternoon. Six hundred and forty-three small dealers, found guilty by his investigators of violating the laws in some form, had been ordered to report.

Short weights and inaccurate and concealed scales made up the bulk of the violations, Mr. Hanson said.

At the opening of the meeting he issued an edict against the sale of molasses and vinegar in bulk. "Hereafter, when any customer wants a quart of molasses or vinegar, you must measure out the stuff in a full quart measure," he said.

SESSION HELD AT NIGHT

By International News Service.

Dublin, Oct. 16.—Professor Eamon De Valera, who is now in the United States, early today was re-elected president of the Sinn Fein organization. Arthur Griffiths was elected vice-president. Mr. Griffiths issued a statement saying that the Sinn Fein was not a political party, "but the Irish nation."

The Sinn Fein convention at which the elections took place was held in the dead of night. It convened at midnight and lasted until 3 o'clock this morning.

It completed all its business with all possible rapidity, anticipating government measures today to prevent a further session of the convention.

HOLDS MAN AT GUN POINT, GETS $380

Providence, Oct. 16.—Pointing a revolver at James Leonard, an actor, of No. 91 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., with one hand, and using the other to go through Leonard's pockets, a thief got $380 in a local hotel room today.

The thief made a slight noise and when Leonard awoke he found the muzzle of a gun in his face. When the man had finished rifling his pockets and started to back toward the door, Leonard jumped out of bed and grappled with the thief.

The latter broke away, dropped his gun and got out of the window, descending the fire escape. Leonard fired two shots after the thief, but the latter got away—with Leonard's money.

FROTHINGHAM IS VICE-COMMANDER

Worcester, Oct. 16.—Colonel Edward L. Logan of the 101st Infantry was elected State commander of the American Legion at the convention of the State branch of the organization today.

Former Lieutenant-Governor Louis A. Frothingham was elected senior vice-commander.

The vote for commander was as follows: Colonel Logan, 331; Harold P. Wilson of Somerville, 130; Frank B. Paton of Dorchester, 23. When the vote was announced Wilson proposed a resolution that the election of Colonel Logan be made unanimous, Paton seconded this and it was carried.

Colonel Logan was greeted by a wonderful ovation as he took the chair, the delegates cheering him wildly.

Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas F. Brown of Brighton withdrew from the commandership contest early in the morning, releasing the delegates pledged to him. A friend obtaining authorization withdrew the name of Major Frank W. Cavanaugh.

Colonel Logan was nominated by General John H. Sherburne of Brookline and the nomination was seconded by Major Foote of Holyoke, General Sweetser and Miss May G. Hurley, the last representing the Yeomen (F).

Colonel John F. J. Herbert led the cheers for Colonel Logan.

Chester D. Hayward of Worcester and Mrs. Daisy May Eird were nominated for second vice-commander, but the vote was delayed.

Worcester delegates to the convention planned to hold a caucus late today on a resolution favoring the six months pay bonus for discharged service men. A majority of the local delegates are known to favor the proposal and they intend to present the resolution to the convention for indorsement.

A hot, but brief, debate took place at the convention over an amendment to the constitution proposed by W. A. Hunt of Haverhill that no officer of the Legion be permitted to

300 PAIRS OF SHOES STOLEN IN BROCKTON

Brockton, Oct. 16.—Three hundred pairs of shoes valued at about $2,000 were stolen from a freight car here last night. The police believe that a motor truck was used to haul away the loot as fresh tracks of one were visible early near the car robbed.

The shoes were in thirteen packing cases. Another case lot was dropped in the yards.

WILSON BETTER AND 'VERY CHEERFUL'

Washington, Oct. 16.—President Wilson had another good night, it was stated today in three official bulletins issued at the White House, which follows:

"The discomfort which the President suffered for two days has been relieved to a very great extent. He had a good night. His temperature, pulse, respiration and kidney functions continue normal.

"(Signed) DR. G. T. GRAYSON,
"DR. J. F. ...,

Dr. Grayson described the patient as being "very cheerful" and anxious to take up his work, but said that he would insist upon this "rest and quiet treatment" for some days.

The President had a comfortable night and seemed better today than last night. The police believe that a motor truck was used to haul away the loot as fresh tracks of one were visible early near the car robbed.

Dr. Grayson also announced the belief that he would be sufficiently recovered to greet the King and Queen of Belgium when they arrive in Washington next month.

SS. FAIR OAKS GOES AGROUND, REFLOATED

Orleans, Oct. 16.—Bound from Nova Scotia to New York with a cargo of plaster, the freight steamship Fair Oaks grounded on a sand bar off this port in the thick fog. Captain Pierce and a crew of Coast Guard Station 40 boarded the steamer in response to distress signals and remained aboard all night.

At high tide today the freighter floated without assistance and anchored a short way off shore, leaking badly.

She struck the sand bar early last evening. The sea was smooth, but the fog was impenetrable, and rockets sent up by the distressed ship could not be seen from the shore. Using her whistle, however, those on the freighter conveyed to the shore word of their need of help, and the coast guard put out at once.

There was little the coast guardsmen could do, except to stand by in case a storm blew up. This they did, remaining until she floated.

SON DECLARES GOMPERS IS WORSE

Washington, Oct. 16.—Samuel Gompers, who was taken ill after his dramatic steel strikes speech at the President's industrial relations conference on Tuesday evening, was reported today as having spent an uncomfortable night, his fever at one time registering 103.

Mr. Gompers' son said:

"My father is worse today. The physician says he is suffering from nervous collapse. We fear that he may be confined to the house for some time. He is very anxious to get back to the conference. Yesterday he had planned to be in attendance at this afternoon's meeting. The doctor says this will be impossible."

Later from his office in the American Federation of Labor building this statement was issued:

"Mr. Gompers' physician, Dr. Henry Parker, states that Mr. Gompers' temperature is now 98.6. He seems considerably rested and appears better, but must still remain in bed."

WHEN I WAS A BOY

growing up on a farm in the beautiful old town of Lancaster, I had my first experience in banking. I had accumulated and deposited in the savings bank—as a result of various activities—what was then to me a considerable sum of money; I think about $80.00.

In common with all other depositors, I was shocked one morning to learn that the bank had failed and that I could not get my money. The man who managed the bank thought that he could do unusual things and not be bound by so-called old-fashioned principles. The result was failure of the bank, suffering and loss to depositors and the banker fled to Canada.

I then concluded that safety of principal rather than rate of income was most important in choosing a bank.

SEE DEFEAT OF ALL TREATY AMENDMENTS

Washington, Oct. 16—The defeat of the proposed Shantung amendment to the peace treaty seemed inevitable as one Senator after another arose in the Senate this afternoon and expressed his intention of voting against it. Opposition to any textual changes being made in the treaty became so pronounced that the prediction was made by "mild reservationists" on the Republican side as well as by administration Senators on the Democratic side, that all proposed amendments would be beaten.

"BIG FIVE" PACKERS DOMINATE THE GROCERY TRADE, IS CHARGE

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION TO SEEK REGULATION

which the "Big Five" and other packers be permitted to enter unrelated food lines was indicated in the report by the statement that this is a "matter which the public interest alone should determine." The report states in this sense there is involved the question as to "the ultimate effect of such vast and powerful organizations on the political and social fabric of American institutions."

The more than 200 unrelated foods alleged to be handled by the Big Five were classified in the report under the divisions of poultry and game products, dairy products, and grocery foods, including cereals and various breakfast foods, lard and butter substitutes, canned and dried vegetables, canned and dried fruits and preserves, canned, cured and frozen fish, condiments and relishes of all kinds and sundries such as cocoa, coffee, honey, molasses, peanut butter, and cane, corn and maple syrups.

In addition to this, Armour & Co., the report alleged, were found to be engaged in handling 1,164 soda fountain preparations and nameless soda fountain utensils.

"The commission's investigation of the meat industry and of perishable, canned, and packaged foods has developed how the large packers are rapidly securing a strong position in the production of many, and in the distribution of nearly all kinds of foodstuffs," the report sets forth.

The "Big Five" packers have divided the food especially field among themselves, each of them concentrating to obtain control in particular lines, the report declared.

As an instance of this, the report stated that while Armour claims the largest business in cheese in the country, this place is conceded to Swift in butter and poultry. In cheese there is a division of location, according to the report, and Armour in butter and poultry a division of territory.

The report cited the alleged transportation advantages granted the "Big Five" packers by the railroads and stated that until they are "shorn of these, there is no way of measuring their true industrial efficiency."

The "Big Five" packers together operated 44.8 per cent. of the total cold storage capacity of the country, it further was charged.

Of the total stocks of dressed poultry held in cold storage on March 31, 1918, 42.27 per cent. was held by the five large packers; of eggs, 20.26 per cent.; butter, 34.8 per cent., and of cheese, 34.66 per cent.

2000 Meat Packers in Greater Boston and Worcester on Strike

Boston and Worcester were hit today by a strike of 2,000 meat packers, which, it is predicted, will spread from the District of Columbia to Bangor, Me. The men seek a closed shop and wage increase.

The three packing plants in Somerville were the first to be affected by the strike, when the 1,700 employes failed to report for work this morning.

There was a meeting of officials of the Packers' Union in Boston, and other conferences elsewhere throughout the country. It was the opinion of the men that following these conferences a general strike during the packing houses all along the coast would be put in effect.

Officials of three packing houses in Somerville, affected by a strike of more than 1,500 of its employes, declare that they have sufficient meat stock on hand to last six weeks and that there is no danger of a shortage or increase in prices of such food.

They also declared their determination to defend the policy of the "open shop." They will not deal with any labor union or body of men representing such a union. However, they stated, at any time they will be prepared to meet a body of workers, as workers, and only as such.

As far as wages are concerned, these officials believe that those paid at their establishments are equal to wages paid in similar industries anywhere.

The concerns affected are the J. F. Squire Company, New England Dressed Meat and Wool Company, and the North Packing and Provision Company.

Out of about 2,300 men employed in all three places, 500 are reported as working by a union official. He stated that at the first-named packing house, 150 men out of 900 were at work; at the second, 100 men out of 400, and at the last named, 200 men out of 1,000 were at work.

Police Fire on Each Other by Mistake at Steel Plant

Chicago, Oct. 16.—An automobile filled with men going to work in the Illinois Steel plant was riddled with bullets and one workman was shot and dangerously wounded today in an unusual battle in which police fought police. Fifteen shots were exchanged before the mistake was discovered.

The automobile guarded by two policemen crashed into another machine, injuring the driver. Two policemen on the street "thought" they were being attacked and opened fire on the stop. When their command was unheeded they opened fire. "Sniping" the shots came from striking steel workers the officers guarding the car returned the fire.

SEEKS 6-MONTH SUGAR EXPORT EMBARGO

Dallinger Proposes Heavy Penalties to Relieve Present Shortage

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 16.—An embargo for six months on the exportation of sugar from the United States under penalty of $10,000 fine or ten years' imprisonment, was proposed as a measure of relief from the existing sugar shortage in a bill introduced in the House this afternoon by Representative Dallinger of Massachusetts.

Legislation for government control of sugar fell flat in the Agricultural Committee of the Senate yesterday.

Senator McNary's bill extending the powers of the United States Sugar Equalization Board until the end of the year 1920 was first objected to by Senator Ransdell and representatives of Southern sugar growers before the committee today because it held provisions for licensing.

When Senator McNary agreed to remove the licensing features from the bill the officials of the United States Sugar Equalization Board declared that they did not want to attempt to control the sugar without licensing powers.

The committee was unable to come to any agreement as to the legislation and decided to postpone consideration of the matter until Saturday.

TWO DIE WHEN AUTO CRASHES INTO TREE

Holliston Girl, Thrown Out of Speeding Auto, Is Run Over by Trolley

Holliston, Oct. 16.—Two automobiles were killed between this town and Medfield early today when the machine in which they were riding struck a tree.

The victims are Francis Whiting and Miss Ethel Nottage of this town. Miss Nottage was thrown from the machine directly in front of an approaching electric car which passed over her, killing her instantly. Whiting was thrown against the tree. He was taken to the Union Avenue Hospital at Framingham, where he died soon after his arrival.

According to Chief of Police Hayes the automobile was running at high speed between this town and Medfield when Warren Keller, the driver, lost control and crashed into the tree.

A party of five had been to attend a dance of the American Legion at Framingham and were returning to this town when the accident happened. In the car at the time of the accident were Miss Annette Shaw, Percy Whiting and Warren Keller, operator of the car.

Miss Nottage was recently divorced. Her name formerly was Mrs. Ethel M. Andrews.

"You have been summonsed to report here," he continued, "because your violations of the law have been, for the most part, of a minor nature. The courts will attend to those who have been found guilty of more flagrant violations."

The dealers then were given instructions that their weights and measures must be presented periodically for inspection. "You must always keep the scales in plain sight of the customer," he said. "When you place an article on the scales, don't yank it off in a hurry. Allow it to remain there until the purchaser can see just the weight is.

"The public is going to be protected. Any further violations by the dealers who are here today will be prosecuted in the courts."

All the dealers were from Greater Boston. It was reported that Commissioner Hanson would send a detail report to Mayor Peters with suggestions that the city of Boston continue the crusade.

accept any elective or appointive public office, or, in fact, public office of any kind while an officer of the Legion.

James A. Donovan of Lawrence opposed the resolution, saying it was not the attitude of the Essex County delegation, and characterizing it as "the narrowest and rottenest" resolution presented to the convention.

Donovan charged that it was a political frameup designed to prevent Colonel Logan, who holds an appointive office as judge, from accepting the commandership. The resolution was overwhelmingly voted down.

An attempt was also made to reconsider the rule barring the freedom of Ireland, the Boston police strike and other outside subjects from discussion. The fight against reconsideration was led by Christopher J. Halligan of Dorchester, who said it was the duty of the Legion to care for the education of disabled veterans, the Americanization of soldiers, and the Legion itself, and not mix in International and domestic affairs not concerning the Legion. The resolution carried the day.

COLONEL LOGAN COURT JUDGE.

Colonel Edward L. Logan, idol of the 101st Infantry and one of the most popular officers in the whole Twenty-sixth Division, was born in Boston forty-three years ago, and has held a prominent place in the affairs of the city, latterly as judge of the South Boston Police Court.

He was educated in this city and is a graduate of Harvard. Before being appointed to the bench he was a successful practising lawyer. For some years his home has been in South Boston, where he now resides, at No. 560 Broadway.

He enlisted in the Ninth Massachusetts Militia, November 30, 1897, and rose rapidly from the ranks through the various grades to that of colonel, which he attained May 17, 1913.

During the Spanish-American War he served as regimental sergeant-major of the Ninth Massachusetts Infantry, U. S. Volunteers. He was colonel of the 9th when the Mexican border troubles broke out, and took his command to the border.

He went to France as commander of the 101st Infantry, as the old Ninth was renamed, and speedily attained a record for popularity. His hosts of friends were dismayed during the last days of the war to learn that he had been relieved of his command for "inertia," but prophesied that he would soon be reinstated. Such proved to be the case, for after a thorough investigation which established the falsity of the charges, he was replaced in command of the 101st, and returned home at its head.

Worcester, Oct. 16.—A resolution presented to the State police convention here today indorsing the strike of Boston policemen and offering financial aid failed of adoption after an hour's debate. It was referred to the incoming executive committe. The only action the committee can take is a report to the next convention. It was pointed out that the Boston police were not members of the State association.

LAUNCH MANY NEW PLANS FOR ADVERTISING

World Rate Card Advocated by American Association at Boston Convention

The convention of the American Association of Advertising Agencies at the Copley-Plaza Hotel closed today. The convention this year being the first with a real national aspect closed as the most successful in the history of the association.

According to members the convention this year has been the means of bringing about closer relations with the publishers and the agencies, as well as other advantages. According to James O'Shaughnessy of New York, executive secretary, and Irving Humphrey of Boston, chairman of the committees in charge, the members leave the convention with many new and novel ideas as to ways and means of putting across Twentieth Century advertising.

Among the projects launched and which according to members of the association will come to a successful termination within a short time are: The standardization of the size of newspapers, the size of the columns and the size of the pages. This, if accomplished, say the members, will result in the saving of over $1,000,000 a year by the publishers. Plans were also started for the standardization of th world rate cards, which if accomplished means th saving of hours of time andwork. If the present advertising in the Join-the-Navy campaign results in the allotted number of men being secured the association is prepared to handle thousands of dollrsof worth of divertising for the government.

The scheduled activities on the program during the convention closed last night with a banquet at Young's Hotel. Today's program, which included golf at the Belmont Spring Golf Club, was interrupted by the threatening weather. Most of the delegates left the convention, representing the advertising agencies throughout the United States, left the city during the forenoon for their homes.

A question in which considerable interest is manifest and which remains unsettled, is where the convention next year will be held. Chicago and Philadelphia loom on the foreground as the favorites. The question will be settled by the members of the executive board in the near future.

'LITTLE SUNSHINE,' WINANS HEIRESS, IS BRIDE OF NEWPORT DOCTOR

WEDDING SURPRISES SOCIETY

Dorothy Bateman Is Married to Dr. Horace P. Beck in New York

Newport, R. I., Oct. 16.—Dorothy Bateman, whose kindness to the late Ross R. Winans, Baltimore millionaire, won her the name of "Little Sunshine" and a $500,000 bequest in Winans' will, has married. The groom was Dr. Horace P. Beck, a prominent Newport citizen and a possible candidate for Mayor, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. George Alexander at the University Place Church, New York.

The heiress and the groom slipped away to New York, and not even the bride's parents were present at the simple ceremony, the culmination of a romance which developed while Miss Bateman hunted and fished from her lodge near Little Compton, R. I., and Dr. Beck camped nearby.

Although news of the marriage took Newport by surprise, it had been known for some time that Dr. Beck was attentive to Miss Bateman, and formal announcement of their engagement had been expected. Both are fond of outdoor sports, particularly fishing and hunting.

Miss Bateman, known as one of the prettiest girls in Rhode Island, became widely known in 1913, when at the age of nineteen she was left $500,000 by the will of Ross R. Winans, whose residence, "Bleak House," was one of the show places of Newport.

It is said that Winans became acquainted with Miss Bateman when the latter, as a tiny child, played on the beach. In his last years Winans found much comfort in the friendship of the girl, who brought him flowers from her garden, and how much he valued this friendship was shown by his will, which cut off his son and the latter's heirs with an annuity, and gave the girl he called "Little Sunshine" a bequest of half a million.

Miss Bateman comes from an old Rhode Island family, formerly wealthy. Her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Bateman, conduct "Bateman Inn" and at the time she became an heiress Miss Bateman superintended the working of the farm connected with the inn, delivering the butter, milk and eggs to customers in her electric car.

ACCEPTED SMALLER SUM.

There was litigation over the will, and it was understood that Miss Bateman accepted a smaller sum than that named in the will, to settle further dispute with Gaston de Galard de Bearn and Beatrice de Bearn, children of Winans' daughter, who were not mentioned in the will.

Although for some time after her good fortune Miss Bateman continued personally to supply her customers with provisions from the farm, for several years she has devoted herself to outdoor sports, Sterling's friends say. She could be seen driving through town in a big racing car piloted by a liveried chauffeur. Her exceptional blond beauty and her taste in dress attracted much attention. Even before she became an heiress she was welcomed at fashionable gatherings, and her popularity in the highest social circles remains unchallenged.

WORCESTER GIRL TO BE BRIDE

New York, Oct. 16.—Miss Rosamond Lancaster, who is well-known in society in New York, will become the bride of Barclay H. Warburton, Jr., a Philadelphia millionaire. Announcement of the engagement was made yesterday by her mother, Mrs. John Edward Lancaster.

Miss Lancaster was active in relief work in New York and Worcester, Mass., the family home, throughout the war. She has two brothers, John E. Lancaster, Harvard, 1916, and Robert A. Lancaster, Harvard, 1920.

THERE'S A LONG LETTER COMING YOUR WAY

State Printers Busy With 32-Page Pamphlet for Every Voter

State printers today were completing their greatest job—the printing of 650,000 copies of a thirty-two page letter to the voters of Massachusetts.

The job is being done in accordance with that part of the initiative and referendum which provides that every voter shall have complete information on every law which is offered to him to accept or reject.

The pamphlet contains a copy of the proposed new draft of the State Constitution in the form adopted by the Constitutional Convention this Summer. This occupies twenty-nine pages. There was no objection offered against the codified constitution. Should the voters reject it, the constitution would remain in its present form of a mass body with fragmentary amendments.

The balance of the pamphlet contains a copy of the law to prohibit paymenis of monthly interest on savings deposits. Whether this law is repealed by the voters at the coming election makes no difference as the Legislature, itself, repealed it soon after Simon Swig of the Tremont Trust Company began his campaign to have it repealed under the I. and R.

First copies of the new pamphlet will reach the voters tomorrow.

30,000 EXPRESSMEN THREATEN TO STRIKE

New York, Oct. 16.—About 30,000 express teamsters included in unions in all cities east of Chicago may strike as a result of the railroad administration's refusal to deal with New York express strikers unless they return to work, according to Michael J. Cashal, first vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, today. The men demand a $25 increase in their monthly pay, an eight-hour day, time and half for overtime, double time for Sundays and a week's vacation in every year.

Northampton, Oct. 16—Figures showing that an assistant professor at Smith College would suffer a deficit in his living budget of more than $1,600 if he could not earn extra money, moved 87 alumni from all over the United States to consider early action in increasing a proposed campaign from $2,000,000 to $6,000,000.

The alumnae, many of whom one year ago were serving in two Smith College Relief Unit in the Argonne Forest and elsewhere in the battle zone, heard the professor's unusual living budget read at the first-day session of the alumnae service school, which has for its object a study of the needs of their alma mater.

Chief of these, it was pointed out, was the erection of fifteen dormitories from which is derived the revenue expended on teachers' salaries. The dormitories alone without the satisfaction of other needs, it was shown, require $1,560,000.

The delegates came from as far west as California, and many of them are widely known in New York, Boston and other sections of the country.

President William Allan Neilson took up the theme of teachers' living budgets and championed the teachers in strong words.

"I hope," he said, "there will not be a public school in the country next year that is not handicapped for lack of teachers. I hope every school board will be moved past the point of compassion to the point of seeing that if business is going to go on you have got to offer good wages so that these people can come back into that profession without an unspeakable amount of sacrifice."

The budget read to the alumni showed that the professor in question had picked over his ashes and shoveled snow in Winters that his wife made the children's clothing and did part of the washing. The professor was paid a salary of $5,400 and his extra earnings amounted to $1,600. He and his wife have three children.

ANTI-RED ARMY DRIVING BACK BOLSHEVIKI

European Russia Is Scene of Heavy Fighting With Radicals in Retreat, Say Reports

By International News Service.

Nearly all of European Russia is ablaze with battle today. At no time since the Soviet was established have the Bolshevik armies been so hard pressed. According to dispatches from Archangel, Omsk and London, the anti-Red forces are advancing on three fronts and the fall of Petrograd is believed to be imminent.

The anti-Bolshevik Russian army under General Yudenitch has captured Gatchina, thirty-eight miles southwest of Petrograd, according to reports from Helsingfors.

Russian and Esthonian troops are said to have occupied Pskov.

General Yudenitch has captured 1,500 Red prisoners and a number of machine guns.

Admiral Kolchak, leader of the anti-Bolshevik forces in Eastern Russia, claims gains over the whole front west of the Ural Mountains and the annihilation of eight Bolshevik regiments.

The Bolsheviks are expected to make a determined stand before Petrograd," the British War Office announced this afternoon. "A surprise attack by the forces under General Yudenitch was the cause of forty-mile retirement by the Bolsheviks. If the present pressure continues long the military collapse of the Bolsheviks is possible. There is every reason to credit the reports of disorder in Petrograd.

The anti-Red forces in Northern Russia claim to be driving the forces of Lenine and Trotzky southward.

General Denikin, commander of the "White Armies" in Southern Russia, is moving on Moscow and is now at Orel, 120 miles from Moscow, the present seat of the Bolshevik government.

The Letts have opened an offensive against the Germans and their Russian allies, along the Dvina River with the evident object of retaking Riga.

The German army of General von der Goltz, which is fighting in defiance of the allies' orders, has joined with a faction of Russians in the Baltic provinces and is reported to be moving again toward Petrograd.

SAYS HUSBAND MADE TARGET OF CRADLE

Wife Charges Cruelty, Declaring Bombardment Followed Singing to Baby

"Hush-a-bye, baby, in the tree top.
When the wind blows, the cradle will rock."

Mrs. Minnie Fine told Judge King in the divorce session of the Superior Court today that when she was singing this familiar nursery ditty, the cradle rocked all right, but it was from missiles hurled by her husband. Tin plates, plates and soup tureens were thrown, said Mrs. Fine, while she sang to their baby.

"I do not want a prima donna for my wife. Get out of my house," were some of his expressions at these times, she said.

Fine gave her 50 cents a day, the court was told, and it was necessary for her mother to help support them, according to the wife.

The plaintiff's mother and a man companion were dismissed from the court room by the judge for an attempt to prompt Mrs. Fine in her testimony.

"Would you live with your husband again?" Judge King asked.

"I don't know," replied Mrs. Fine. "I have given him three chances."

Mrs. Fine asks for a divorce on the grounds of cruelty. Fine has filed a counter-suit, alleging desertion.

Judge King took the case under advisement.

Wife Says Husband Was Abusive Before Secret of Wedding Became Known

Witnesses in the divorce court today testified to seeing bruises and marks about the throat of Mrs. Carrie E. Furry, a concert singer, and she claims they were made by Louis Furry, from whom she seeks a divorce.

Mrs. Sarah Donnell, mother of the plaintiff, and Mrs. Elizabeth Meller, who resided in Charlestown at the time the Furrys lived there in 1920, both said they had seen these bruises.

Mrs. Furry told the court that she was a prima donna in "Rosemaid," a musical comedy of several seasons ago. In recent years, she said, she has been singing on a Chautauqua circuit, to support herself.

The couple were married on February 4, 1920, and agreed to keep their wedding a secret for six months. They separated immediately after the ceremony, according to Mrs. Furry, but at the end of the four months she went to live with her husband in response to his pleadings.

The abusive treatment began shortly afterward, she declared.

The court reserved its decision.

HIGGINS HOTEL HEADS IN COURT AFTER RAID

Isaac Gordon and John Loring, respectively proprietor and manager of the Higgins Hotel in Court street, were arraigned in municipal court today charged with conducting a disorderly house. On application of the defendants the case was continued to October 22. The arraignment followed a raid on the house by Grover Ladd, a volunteer policeman, and Ellen Sears, a Watch and Ward investigator temporarily assigned to the police force.

MAYNARD FLIES PAST ST. PAUL IN RACE EAST

"Flying Parson" Making Fast Time; Westbound Pilots Held Up

New York, Oct. 16.—Lieutenant B. M. Maynard, leader in the coast-to-coast air race, left St. Paul, Neb., headed eastward, at 10:47 a. m. (central time) today, according to a dispatch to the American Flying Club. The "Flying Parson" has made excellent time today on his return trip to Minola and barring accidents is expected to beat the time he made on the trip to the Pacific Coast.

Minola, L. I., Oct. 16—Murky weather with a slow drizzle and low hanging fog delayed preparations at Roosevelt field here today for getting off the Pacific coast contestants in the trans-continental air derby.

Lieutenant Emil Kiel, Lieutenant H. Queens and Lieutenant L. E. Bishop will get away late today if the weather clears.

Lieutenant P. W. Worthington in an SIE-5 will not leave until tomorrow, as he is getting a new motor.

Word came to the field from Washington today that Captain Lowell H. Smith, one of the leaders in the coast group, whose plane burned up at Buffalo last night, is definitely out of the race. Captain Smith had requested a new machine, but air service officials at Washington declined such aid.

A big reception will be given tomorrow to Lieutenant B. W. Maynard, who is now enroute to Roosevelt Field from the coast, leading all the other contestants.

"Flying Parson" Speeds Eastward, Regardless of Stormy Weather

Sidney, Neb., Oct. 16—Lieutenant B. W. Maynard, the Baptist minister who is breaking all records on the eastern leg of his flight in the trans-continental air derby, left here early this morning for North Platte, Neb., after an excellent night's rest. He expects to be in Chicago by evening.

The "Flying Parson," in making 115 miles in 54 minutes from Rawlins to Cheyenne late yesterday afternoon, flew straight eastward through heavy storms, following the same course as that taken by Lieutenant E. V. Wade, who was killed last week when he bumped into Elk Mountain.

"I never saw the mountain," Maynard commented.

Maynard decided to remain over night in Cheyenne, where the citizens had arranged a reception in his honor, declaring that he wanted to note Minola Friday afternoon and the distance between Cheyenne and Sidney would add considerably in his efforts if negotiated before sundown yesterday. He made Rawlins at 5:45, covering the 83 miles in 42 minutes.

Death List in Race Now Stands at Nine; All De Haviland Victims

New York, Oct. 16—The severe criticism heaped on the De Haviland Four airplane by Brigadier-General William Mitchell of the Army Air Service, before a congressional committee, was approved, echoed today by officials of the American Flying Club and aviators at the Long Island flying fields. The De H-4 was practically the only American plane which saw service at the front.

Since General Mitchell's testimony two more aviators have been killed in the transcontinental air derby. Nine names, the death list to nine, all of whom have been killed in flights of planes of the completed death list today was:

Plane No. 12—Colonel Townsend F. Dodd.

No. 26—Major Hatrick Frissell.

No. 42—Major Hill Crissey and Sergeant V. Thomas.

No. 24—M. S. E. Worth D. McClure.

No. 4—Sergeant W. H. Nevitt.

No. 46—Lieutenant French Kirby and Lieutenant S. C. Miller.

No. 63. — Lieutenant E. C. Weiss.

The construction of the De H-4s makes them peculiarly susceptible to fatal accidents, even in short drops, aviators here said. The structure is fragile and unable to withstand a severe jar without crumpling, according to flyers. Also, the pilot sits between the motor and the gasoline tank, greatly enhancing the chances of being crushed to death in the event of an accident.

In France, under service conditions, the De H-4s were referred to jocularly as "flaming coffins" by fliers, it was said at Roosevelt field today. Some such descriptive type of plane as the "flaming coffins" was applied because of the many De H-4s which came down in flames or were burned up in training.

This was largely due, it was said, to the fact that the tank was not covered, and its performance usually led to fire. Most of the French and British machines had their petrol tanks protected by half-inch rubber coating.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 16.—Major A. H. Gilkeson, westbound contestant in the air derby, arrived here shortly before noon today. Lieutenant L. Corborne, westbound, took the air here at 9:21.

Waukegan, Ill., Shows Its Patriotism in a Unique Way

Waukegan, Ill., Oct. 16.—Waukegan has adopted a unique method of letting the world know of its patriotism. Instead of having printed signs on street corners here reading

"This is an American town. Don't criticize our President, nor allies or our government.

"If you don't like our country, go back to your own country.

"If you have no country, go to Hell."

DAUGHTER TELLS OF REGNIER'S PROMISES

Said He Would Be a Father to Her, Declares Child of Mrs. Gohn

Pittsfield, Oct. 16.—Testimony in the $25,000 heart balm suit of Mrs. Daisy Gohn of Philadelphia against Louis H. Regnier of Lenox closed today. Mrs. Harry Harrison, daughter of the plaintiff, was the only witness. The defense put on no witnesses.

The daughter corroborated her mother's testimony regarding Regnier's visits to the Gohn home in Lancaster, Pa., in 1917. On one occasion, witness said, Regnier put his arm around her neck and said he would be a father to her.

She told of coming to Lenox and of hearing, three months after her arrival, that Regnier had a wife from whom he was not divorced. She got a position at $11.25 a week, she said, and gave her mother practically all she made.

Mrs. Harrison said Regnier provided for her mother and herself but little money, and that her mother had little money, although she personally had received some from her father, from whom her mother is divorced. She told of being at the Hotel Aspinwall with a friend, who pointed out Regnier's wife.

Attorney George A. Prediger, counsel for Regnier, in his argument said that Mrs. Gohn was a designing woman, anxious to get out better her condition. He said that letters appearing in the case some that in November, 1917, when she met Regnier, she must have known that he had a wife living and divorced, and that he could not marry Mrs. Gohn.

Attorney Milton H. Warner, counsel for the plaintiff, pictured Regnier as a confidence man. Mrs. Gohn, he said, was a young married woman at her heart than by her judgment, and was led into a trap laid for her by Regnier.

WILL INCREASE TAXES OF RENT PROFITEERS

Mayor Walter H. Creamer of Lynn today announced the result of his investigation of rent profiteering in that city, which was begun a month ago. Large increases in rent, as compared with the valuation of property, was shown by the Mayor's announcement.

In making his report the Mayor said the increases were unwarranted and that if immediate reductions were not made he would add the names of all "profiteers" over to the board of assessors for higher assessment next year.

On property valued up to $5,000, which gave rents in the last pre-war service, the increase was from 11 to 19 per cent. On property valued at $5,000 to $10,000 the increase was from 14 to 22 per cent., without real or janitor service.

The investigation showed that during the war no repairs had been made in the tenement district and that it, which was badly hit by increased rents.

The Mayor called upon the Lynn Chamber of Commerce and the Lynn Realty Exchange to help bring down the rents.

SIX MEXICAN REBELS KILLED IN BATTLE

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 16.—Word received here stated that six soldiers attached to the forces of Governor Canto of Lower California, who mutinied a few weeks ago, were killed in battle with regular Canto troops, which took place in the Cape Negro section.

Four were shot down in the course of the fighting, two were captured and later executed near San Quentin. The Mexican report stated that this ended the possibility of any further trouble.

Boy Twice Rejected as Sailor Will Now Ask Father

Robert Cameron, seventeen, of Groton, Ct., wanted to join the navy and "see the world," but failed to strengthen his plans with the written consent of his parents. Consequently, when he reached Boston and applied for enlistment at Naval Recruiting Station, he was twice rejected.

Roberts spent three days "seeing the city," in consolo himself. Today his funds gave out, and he again reported at the recruiting station.

"We admire your spirit," said the captain. "If you can get your parents' consent, come back and we will be glad to accept you for the navy."

DEMANDED FOR CAR.

Cutler's car was stolen last May, several days ago the police claim that Kerr and his confederates admitted privately to him that they had stolen it and would return it for $200.

Last night Cutler says he accepted the suggestion that to pay a ransom for his own car and was taken to the isolated house in Braintree. He paid over the $200, which the girl immediately slipped into her sleeve.

Then the three men demanded that he "raise a little more." $100 more, according to Cutler, and threatened to kill him unless he paid it over. They told him they would visit his house in Wollaston before daybreak and if cutler was not there—

FATHER BOUGHT AUTO.

On his way back to Wollaston Cutler met Captain Goodhue, who had been working on the case. Goodhue accompanied him and hid outside. When Cutler's visitors arrived and demanded $200 Captain Goodhue, hoisted into the room with a drawn revolver and put them under arrest.

The grainiree headquarters of the gang was visited later today. The girl declared that the sewing machine had been sold to her father, who bought it in good faith. Thos Kerr told the girl at the time that he would have to return it, she says he suggested that the money Cutler, would be glad to pay $200 to get it back, and save her father financial loss.

ARREST 3 MEN AT GUNPOINT FOR EXTORTION

Charge Quincy Trio Held Auto for Ransom; Pretty Girl Figures in Unique Case

Three alleged auto thieves charged with having attempted to extort ransom for the return of a stolen car, were arrested at a relative's point in Wollaston by Captain Goodhue of the Quincy police department today.

The men were in the home of Isaac Cutler, rightful owner of a machine in possession of the arrested trio. The police charge that they had already extorted $200 from Cutler for the return of the car, and were trying to get $100 more.

The men are: Peter Kerr, Quincy Point; Samuel Levy, Bigelow street, Quincy and Charles Reynolds of Braintree. A pretty girl of eighteen, whose name the police refuse to divulge, is expected to be a leading witness when the case comes to trial. She lives in a lonely house in Braintree, where it is alleged the three men made their headquarters. She was in possession of the $200 extorted from Cutler when questioned by the police, the latter charge.

600 STRIKERS RESUME WORK AT DOCKS

The backbone of the Boston dock strike was broken today, when the 600 longshoremen who struck Monday at the Commercial Point docks in East Boston returned to work.

Responsible union officials were evidently back in control, and they predicted that the remaining 1,000 men would have returned to work, and ended the tieup of transAtlantic shipping which began Friday.

The docks in South Boston and Charlestown reported slightly larger crews today, the men drifting back by twos and threes.

When the Boston longshoremen returned to work they were confronted by a new situation. The railroad freight handlers had not reported for duty, and the work of the freight handlers complements that of the longshoremen only a fraction of the latter's force could be worked and be employed this morning.

Efforts were immediately got busy rounding up the freight handlers. The rumor that they were striking on their own account was discredited, as they had presented no demands. Steamship company officials were of the opinion that the handlers did not report for duty because they thought the strike was still on, and there would be nothing for them to do.

Full crews went to work in the hold of the Scindia in East Boston, this being the first ship to sail today. Crews also began unloading the Leyland liner Caledonian, which arrived this week with a cargo from Manchester, England.

The Railroad Administration began accepting freight rooted via the East Boston terminal today, administration officials considering the troubles at an end.

TEACHERS VOICE DEMAND FOR $600 RAISE

Injustice They Suffer Breeding Socialism, Declares Jenney

Reasons for the demand of a $600-a-year increase for all teachers were presented to the School Committee of the city of Boston at a hearing held in the School Committee Chamber at the Mason street building, when more than 250 members of various teachers' organizations were present.

Twenty representatives of the largest of these organizations were allotted five minutes each in which to present their views. Judge Michael H. Sullivan presided, while the various speakers were introduced by Charles W. Parmenter, head master of the Mechanic Arts High School.

CHARGE DISCRIMINATION.

Although it had been previously agreed upon that all other requests and differences should be submerged in the demand for the flat increase of $600, several took the opportunity to speak briefly of the injustice of the discrimination between the pay of men and women who are doing the same work. Equal work should receive equal pay, it was stated.

The starting note of the hearing was sounded when Charles Jenney, of the Mechanic Arts High School and president of the junior masters in the Men's Economic Association, declared:

"The rank injustice of the situation which the teachers of Boston are facing tends to breed the vilest form of socialism."

Mr. Jenney further stated that after a thorough investigation of the financial condition of six junior masters, taken at random, in not a single instance was the salary received sufficient for the support of their families.

Several of these men had been forced to draw upon the saving of a life time, which at present were nearly exhausted. Others were existing by the help of outside sources, while others were hopelessly in debt, which was becoming more oppressive each day.

LEADS TO SOCIALISM.

These men have given their lives to the educational work, expecting to make some sacrifice, Mr. Jenney said, but the condition into which they have sunk is through no fault of theirs. It is an unjust situation which leads to the bitterest forms of socialism. These men are all over forty years of age. At present it is impossible for them to take their families for a ride on a street car without taking the bread from their mouths.

One instance was cited of a man who is the sole support of a wife, four children and a widowed mother and who was forced to give up a $5,000 life insurance policy because he could not afford to pay the premium.

Miss Julia M. Fitzpatrick of the Rice School, and president of the Boston Elementary Teachers' Club, said:

"I represent 2,300 elementary teachers who are today in the class rooms of the schools of Boston. We are the lowest paid teachers in the service, and we have probably felt the terrible increase in the cost of necessities more than any other group. All differences between the organizations have been submerged, and we are joining forces in requesting the School Committee to appeal to the Legislature for sufficient funds to grant a flat increase of at least $600 a year.

LONG PROBATIONARY PERIOD.

"A girl must complete a three-year normal course, preceded by her high school work, and then act as substitute for from one to four years before she can receive an appointment. The yearly salary of the kindergarten assistant is $576 a year, $48 a month, $11.07 a week, $1.85 a day, while that of an elementary assistant is $696 a year, $58 a month or $1.30 a day. Can a girl feed, clothe and house herself on that amount, to say nothing of recreation?"

William B. Snow, head master of the English High School and president of the Schoolmasters' Club, said:

"In the old days there were many Harvard graduates among those who entered the ranks of teachers. Today it is impossible to find scarcely a single college man who is taking up the profession of teaching. It is an impossible to make good schools without good teachers as it is to make bricks without straw, he declared. No one ever hears of the teachers receiving time and a half for overtime.

"Owing to the 15 per cent. increase in the cost of living, no one voiced any objection when the Massachusetts Legislature voted a 50 per cent. increase in their own salaries. The same increase for the teachers would cost the city two and one-half million dollars," declared Mr. Snow.

TEACHERS WHO VOICED VIEWS.

CITY FAILED IN DUTY TO POLICE, SAYS MINISTER

Portland, Me., Oct. 16.—Although he said he stood with Governor Coolidge in the action taken by the latter after the police strike in Boston, the Rev. Frank M. Sheldon, secretary of the Congregationalist Education Society, who presided at one of the denominational conferences of Sunday school workers here today, declared there was a bad side to the city's case in the controversy.

"The Boston police had tried to get conditions remedied," he said, "and we didn't help them. We ought to have been doing something about this, and that's the cause of the present compromising situation. I stand absolutely with Governor Coolidge, however."

Celebrate 'Ether Day' at Massachusetts General Hospital

Today is "Ether Day." Just seventy-one years ago today the first operation for which ether was used as an anaesthetic was performed at the Massachusetts General Hospital in this city, when Dr. W. T. G. Morton etherized Gilbert Abbott and Dr. John C. Warren operated for a tumor of the jaw. Following the operation the world at large received its first news of what Dr. Weir Mitchell later termed, "the death of pain."

Dr. Morton later became involved in a dispute with Dr. Charles T. Jackson over the discovery of ether, from which Dr. Morton derived practically no pecuniary benefit. Morton died in New York a poor man. But a moment to his memory was erected in the Public Garden near Marlboro street.

For a number of years it has been the custom each year to take official notice of "Ether Day," with appropriate ceremonies at the Massachusetts General Hospital, and this was done today.

VETO OF 'DRY' BILL ASKED BY BREWERS

Claim Passage Would Destroy Year of Grace That Was Accorded Them

By Universal Service.

Washington, Oct. 16.—A petition of protest against the prohibition enforcement act has been filed at the White House by the United States Brewers' Association. It is addressed to the President.

The association, which claims "to represent an investment of approximately 500,000,000, says the enactment of the bill, which has been passed by both Senate and House, would extend wartime prohibition.

The brewers set forth their operation of 425 separate brewing plans, which brew 70 per cent. of the beer made and sold in the United States and employ more than 50,000 persons. They say they do a business of $535,000,000 a year, of which $310,000,000 is payable in taxes to the Federal government.

ASK VETO OF ACT.

A Presidential veto of the prohibition act is the substance of the brewers' protest, but at the White House today it was said the prohibition bill has not yet arrived from the Capitol.

At the present time, according to the brewers, they are confining themselves to the manufacture of 2.75 per cent. beer, which they say is non-intoxicating. In furtherance of this claim they cite the proceedings in the United States District Court in New York.

"Your petitioner further respectfully urges," says the petition, "that ample statutory provisions are now in force and effect to accomplish any legitimate war purpose, or to meet any possible war emergency or necessity that may arise.

"The proposed legislation now pending for approval, however, would extend the existing prohibitions and reach all classes of civilians in every part of the country, prohibiting them from manufacturing, selling or using non-intoxicating beverages which are nutritious and harmless and form part of the daily food of millions of our citizens."

DESTROYS YEAR OF GRACE.

The third point raised by the brewers is that the intent and object of the present legislation is to put extreme laws into effect long before January 16, 1920, the date upon which the constitutional amendment becomes effective, and this, they say, is beyond the constitutional power of Congress. Furthermore, they point out such a program destroys the year of grace which was to have been provided for the manufacturers, so they might dispose of their business, while their fourth contention is an argument on behalf of the continuation of the manufacture of 2.75 per cent beer, which they declare to be non-intoxicating.

Great enthusiasm greeted "The Drive," the play given by the dramatic class of the Boston Gaelic School Society, in Hibernian Hall, Roxbury, the action of which centres around Irish freedom. The singing of Miss May A. Kirwin and Miss Vera Keene won much applause, while the rendition of "De Valera's Ride," by Miss Delia Devitney was well received. The scenic effects were the work of Joseph W. Murphy of Boston. The play will be repeated tonight.

WORKING GIRLS INVITED TO WELLESLEY

College Students Take Up Social Service Instead of Pink Teas and Matinees

Pink teas and matinees will have a small place in the activities of Wellesley College this year. Instead the students of this fashionable girls' school are going in for social service.

Residents of the settlement houses will be invited to the college for dinner and parties in the dormitories. Working girls will be asked to visit the school and during the Winter the Working Girls' Club will produce a play at Wellesley which was written by one of them.

The college girls are especially interested in social work among the blind and are co-operating with the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind. A number have already volunteered to serve as guides and assistants to blind persons of Boston. In hours when they have no classes, these students will read to the blind and take them for walking and shopping trips. Miss Helen Keller will visit Wellesley during the Winter to give a lecture on her experiences.

TO PROTECT YOUNGER GIRLS.

A "big sister" movement for the small girls has been taken up. Students will be assigned to visit and advise young girls who have no relatives to act in that capacity. The work will include neighborhood libraries for children, story telling and dramatics.

The relief among crippled and deformed children will be conducted through the school for such cases at No. 2419 St. Botolph street.

The Wellesley girls also plan to protect the public from unsanitary and improper food. They will inspect bakeries, restaurants and hotels, working in conjunction with the board of health.

In addition to these activities, a hospital service league, a savings division and volunteer service bureau of the Red Cross are being organized.

550 GIRLS ENROLLED.

To apportion the social service work equitably a membership campaign for the association is now on. The directors report that 550 girls have enrolled, and they expect the goal of 700 to be reached in a few weeks.

The Wellesley social service work is part of that planned by the Intercollegiate Community Service Association, which includes all the leading girls' colleges in the East. Miss Margaret Wiedenbach, Wellesley, '20, whose home is in New Rochelle, N. Y., is vice-president of the Intercollegiate Association.

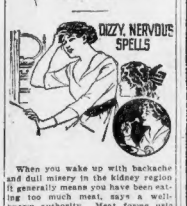
Miss Margaret Faye of Berkeley, Cal., and Miss Margaret Watterson of Dayton, O., compose the factotum. On the executive board are: Miss Elizabeth Woody of Louisville, Ky., Miss Tacy Parry of Summit, N. J., and Miss Sarah Corrant of Waltham. Miss Mildred Miles of Buffalo, N. Y., and Miss Ruth Gardner of Fowna, Vt., were elected to the advisory board.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is a sign you have been eating too much meat.



When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and lazy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Advertisement.

TYPHUS VICTIMS AIDED BY THE RED CROSS

American Nurses Work Hard to Make Stricken Russians Comfortable

New demands are being made upon the American Red Cross in Siberia by cholera and typhus epidemics now raging, states a report received at headquarters of the New England division here. Disease is especially prevalent in the districts served by the Trans-Siberian and Chinese Eastern railways.

Hospital trains put in operation by the Red Cross from Manchuria and Western Siberia to the concentration point of Nikolsk, seventy miles north of Vladivostok, "are unable to unload their cargoes of sick and wounded owing to a shortage of hospital space. The trains are met by American doctors and nurses who, with the Russians to assist them, clean the coaches and make the patients as comfortable as possible while they are waiting to be transferred to a hospital.

SHAVE TYPHUS PATIENTS.

Typhus patients are washed and shaved, the shaving including the head, and provided with clean underwear, sheets and blankets before being removed from the train.

In the railroad yards of Omsk, according to the Red Cross report, 10,000 railroad cars were recently stalled, most of the cars being filled with refugees from the territory in the path of the Kolchak and Bolshevik armies. Most of the refugees showed plainly the effects of disease and insufficient nourishment.

Mankind's Dean, 144, Fears Coffee Habit Is Hastening End

By Universal Service.

London, Oct. 16.—The distinction claimed by John Shell of Kentucky, who is said to be 131, that he is the world's oldest man, is disputed by Major Road, R. F., late deputy naval store officer at Constantinople, who puts forward the claim of Zorro, a Turkish laborer employed by him in the Constantinople depot. The major said:

"This man claims to be 144, and although I have not seen the records supporting his claim, it is reported that they exist in the Turkish military arsenal Tophane quay, Constantinople.

"In the same working party, I had this man's grandson's grandson—the latter a boy of sixteen.

"Zorro is a life-long teetotaler and non-smoker, but admits excessive coffee drinking, which he is afraid will bring him to an early grave.

"He is the tallest and most finely built of a party of 140 men, and, although he is as clever in dodging work as a man of his long experience can be, he is able to do as much as the average man in his gang.

"He told me once that he liked working for the British, but unfortunately hadn't had an opportunity of doing so since the Crimean War."

URGES MERGER OF ALL FLYING FORCES

By Universal Service.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Establishment of a separate air service, which would bring military, naval and civilian flying activities under one head, is recommended by Major-General William Mitchell, chief of aviation in the American Expeditionary Forces.

A combined service of this sort is necessary, General Mitchell declared, in order to keep the United States apace with other nations of the world in the development of the science of flying. Concentration of activities under one head, he said, would allow late progress and increase efficiency.

In time of an emergency, under this plan, machines would be detailed to the army and navy, and the country always would be ready with a highly trained personnel and up-to-date planes.

VON TIRPITZ SAYS HE VAINLY URGED KAISER TO DEFY AMERCA

WANTED NO CONCESSIONS IN U-BOAT WARFARE

VON TIRPITZ MEMOIRS.

By ALFRED VON TIRPITZ,
Grand Admiral of the German Navy.

It must be admitted that in respect to the submarine question Austria began by showing more starch than did we. In the Ancona case in December, 1915, she scored a distinct victory over Wilson, but the policy of the German Foreign Office shortly made her hedge.

About this same time a change was taking place in the attitude of our military administration toward the submarine question. The army fronts were paralyzed and a decision of the war was becoming more and more remote. Probably at the request of the army chiefs a conference on the question was held in the War Office December 30, 1915, and January 5, 1916.

General von Falkenhayn stated that now that Bulgaria had declared herself on our side he would consent to unrestricted submarine warfare if the navy would guarantee success.

Falkenhayn's stated reason for previously supporting the chancellor's stand against U-boat warfare in the Autumn of 1916 was that in consequence of the comments from the Foreign Office he feared that such action would prevent Bulgaria from joining us. Communications from Bulgarian officials deny this most emphatically.

At the War Office conference I recommended, instead of unrestricted submarine warfare, a blockade decree of some sort and that we should not recommence submarine activities until March. Falkenhayn, Holtzendorff and the minister of war, Wild von Hohenborn, were fully agreed with me. It was believed by all that if we resumed submarine warfare without the restrictions which formerly hampered us England's resistance would probably be broken in six months at the most. The American danger was recognized, but it was argued that if by the Autumn of 1916 a peace favorable to Germany had not been reached hope would disappear of any settlement which would permit Germany to resume, or possibly even to win back in the decades to come, the commercial and economic position which had been ours.

A memorial embodying these ideas was submitted to a number of German economic bureaus and all agreed that the only chance for Germany was the immediate reopening of unrestricted submarine warfare.

FALKENHAYN PROMISED.

Falkenhayn's position was summed up in the following words to Captain Widenmann, detailed by me to confer with him at headquarters as to the proposed campaign:

"We are all agreed that England will fight till a decision is come to. The decision lies in the possession of Belgium. If we give up Belgium we are lost. I have decided for the submarine war and reckon decidedly on Its being carried out. I will support it with all my power and put it through."

On February 23, 1916, in Wilhelmshaven I had the opportunity to tell His Majesty that I heard with gratification that a serious war against English tonnage was to be undertaken. He intimated that such was the case. Nevertheless, the U-boat campaign was again delayed, and in protest I tendered my resignation, which was accepted, March 17. To save the face of the government I ascribed illness as the reason for my action.

Admiral von Cappelle was my successor. In the Summer of 1915 he had been decidedly in favor of the U-boat war. Before entering office, however, he had to pledge himself to support the Chancellor in all naval political questions.

On March 24, 1916, the French steamer Sussex was torpedoed. To a question from the United States an answer was sent before the arrival of a report from the U-boat commander in question, stating that the German government could not but suppose that the damage done to the Sussex was to be ascribed to another cause than the attack of a German submarine.

Later, however, the communication came that the Sussex had been torpedoed by one of our U-boats. According to the statement of the particularly experienced and circumspect submarine commander, the steamer was painted like a battleship and a large number of English troops in uniform were on deck.

Therefore the commander of the U-boat believed that he was not only morally but technically in the right.

AMERICA'S KNOCKOUT NOTE.

To our note of April 18, the actual incorrectness of which was pointed out by America, the well-known American "knockout note" of April 20 was sent demanding the immediate cessation of the sinking method of German U-boat war and threatening the breaking off of relations with the German government.

After this note was published I once more went to Homburg to the Emperor begging him not to yield to Wilson. I received no reply. Instead, on May 4, Germany sent a note yielding to all the American demands, but requesting the American government to hold Great Britain to the international standards recognised before the war. If this could not be done, the German government stated that it must reserve to itself complete freedom of decision in the new situation.

Wilson had demanded the punishment of the U-boat commander who sunk the Sussex. The admiral commanding the naval corps in Flanders took no steps in this direction, as the U-boat commander had been in the right. Thereupon the commander was punished by the Emperor himself. The small remnant of U-boat warfare which was left to us soon died out entirely in the Mediterranean.

WORD OF EYE-WITNESS.

I have the word of an eye witness as to what took place in the council chamber when my memorial on the Sussex note to which I have referred arrived there. It made a deep impression on the Emperor, probably because its contents strengthened his own opinions. In fact, he decided to ignore Wilson's note and from then on to conduct the submarine warfare unrestricted.

Despite the fact that he was backed up in this decision by the army chiefs, the Chancellor was able to work him around again so that he followed the course I have described above.

I said earlier in my memoirs that the Sussex note was the turning point in the war. We showed the world that we were succumbing to America.

The submarine war if unrestrictedly recommenced in the Spring of 1916 would have contained uncertain factors as does every strategical, political and economic measure. But today we have more proofs than ever that it would have created a more conciliatory attitude on the part of England. This would never have expressed itself to so pitiful and foolish a manner as the peace resolution of our Reichstag deputies of 1917, but it would have served materially to bring about an acceptable peace for us.

CRITICAL TIME FOR ENGLAND.

A recent issue of the Economist, a British publication, says: "Once during the last four years Germany was to all reasonable distance of winning the war. That was not in the Spring of 1918 when the armies of England and France swerved under the onslaughts of the Germans. It was in the Spring of 1917 when our prospects on land seemed favorable. The Germans beaten at the Somme had retired behind the Hindenburg line and had taken the defensive in the west. Russia was still a factor in the war. And yet this Spring of 1917's was actually the most critical and deadly time we experienced since the beginning of the war. For a short time it seemed as if our fleet had failed and as if our communications, on which everything depended, were to be interrupted. If the losses of England and her allies in merchant vessels had continued on the same scale as in April, May and June, 1917, Germany would have won the war before the year had come to an end."

The Morning Post of October 3, 1918, wrote, "Germany attempted to attain the end which she had not sought through a naval battle, by a submarine mercantile war. It was the greatest danger that ever confronted this country."

In November, 1918, it was openly stated on the floor of the House of Commons that, "In April of 1917 the German submarines were so successful that in nine months England would be ruined had the destruction of ships continued at the same rate."

However, our diplomatic and democratic supporters of the government hindered the submarine war with restrictions and kept it from commencing at the right time, and in the place of a quick and powerful and, therefore, more humane blow, substituted a lingering action which betrayed weakness and a bad conscience and sealed our doom.

ANTI-SUBMARINE MEASURES.

In 1916 although we did not have so many submarines as in 1917, they would have been more effective. Our political leaders could not grasp the simple truth that the important question was not how many submarines we had, but how many ships we could sink. By waiting until 1917 to resume the warfare we permitted our enemies to so perfect their defenses against submarines that our then large number was not so effective.

In reading the war diaries of the submarine commanders I felt only anew with what disappointment they had to set slip the very richest of prizes. It is certain that on every trip that year they could have achieved five to six times as much as in a corresponding cruise in 1917. In the following diary, for instance, Captain Steinbrink, whose mission war was that of a raider, could actually be done by a submarine under the restrictions imposed, wrote:

"July-August, 1916. On account of the weather being very unfavorable for a torpedo attack we could only remain off the mouth of the Seine four days, as long as wind and sea rendered it possible and not being in a position that time from a distance of three to eight miles [illegible] the ingoing traffic was watched by day and night and every steamer questioned as to nationality, either in order to ascertain its character from the closest possible point.

"In all, during the four days we were made to steamers in daylight with our torpedo ready to fire. Seven of these steamers could be with certainty identified as enemy vessels.

SIX STEAMERS SEEN.

"Six steamers were seen at dawn. They were painted black with gray or brown superstructures and showed no flags. Every one of them was accompanied by a destroyer without lights or by one or two armed fishing steamers.

"My firm belief is that these were ships conveying troops or important material, but as I did not find my convictions confirmed by the signs ordered to be observed—troops in great numbers, ordnance on transport and heavy guns on deck—I was not in a position to attack these steamers."

This showed the impossibility of seriously interfering with the transport service of England's troops to France. The intention of the undertaking was to ascertain whether, under the existing regulations, i. e., only to conduct a mercantile war under prize regulations, it was possible, without warning only vessels ascertained with certainty to be troopships. It would be possible to [illegible] the transports for the English army in France, which was the most important task for the navy at the time.

We were helpless against the transports without the right to torpedo all vessels passing between England and France with the exception of hospital ships.

It is obvious to what a degree our U-boats might have influenced the issue of the Somme battle. But apart from such single questions, those who were clear that the war would decide the destiny of the German people, could not read such reports on the crippling of our best weapon without the deepest emotion.

Our attitude in the Spring of 1916 said to the whole world with the exception of some of our diplomats and democrats, "Germany is going down."

In the next installment: Renewed submarine activity frustrates diplomatic negotiations with United States. Military administration doubts ability to hold out through Winter of 1917-1918 and urges U-boat campaign. Says Wilson's loss of confidence in German policy destroyed her capacity for further international negotiations. American soldiers took Germany by surprise and turned scale on western front. Mexico telegram gave force to Wilson's demand. Declares Germans blunders responsible for America plunging into war contrary to her own interests.

LEAGUE CHAIR GOAL LOST TO WILSON

Illness Makes Unlikely Election to Presidency of Council of Nations

By JUSTIN McGRATH,
Editorial Correspondent Universal Service.

Washington, Oct. 16.—President Wilson now seems definitely fated to lose the great honor which has been the goal of his ambition—the presidency of the League of Nations.

For the past year the President has directed the energies of his powerful intellect to achieving this great distinction. It was undoubtedly within his grasp when fate interposed his illness. There is no probability now, and scarcely a possibility that the President will have sufficiently recovered his health in time to make himself available for election to the high post. It is questionable even whether the President will be able to call the session of the league together unless he should delay the first meeting of the league unduly.

SLATED FOR ELECTION.

Under Article 5 of the League of Nations covenant it is provided as follows:

"The first meeting of the assembly and the first meeting of the council shall be summoned by the President of the United States of America."

It has been the general understanding among the representatives of all the powers signatory to the treaty that the first meeting of the League of Nations would be called immediately after the ratification of the treaty by the five great powers, and that the first meeting would be held in Washington. It has also been an accepted fact that President Wilson would be honored by election as president of the league.

The treaty already has been ratified by Great Britain and France, and complete ratification by Italy and Japan is expected within a month. It had been the tentative understanding that the final vote on ratification by the United States Senate would be taken around November 15. If these expectations are realized all five of the great powers will have ratified it before December.

MUST TAKE LONG REST.

Under that condition the first meeting of the league of Nations might reasonably be expected to be held about the first of the year.

President Wilson's physicians do not hold out any hope of his restoration to health and strength by that time. They have said that he must have at least several months' complete rest. In view of these statements of his physicians, it appears to be extremely unlikely that the President could undertake the strain of presiding over the League of Nations if it were called together around the first of the year.

The President, of course, could defy his ill health until such time as he felt able to preside over the deliberations of the league. No one in official circles, however, seems to think that the President will take that course. The general opinion is that he will give up his own ambition to be the first president of the league rather than delay for an unnecessary day the starting of all of the political and economic processes necessary for the reconstruction of the world.

LLOYD GEORGE SUGGESTED.

Premier Clemenceau would be the natural choice after President Wilson, but his age and his condition of health stand in the way of his acceptance.

There is little likelihood that he will undertake to cross the Atlantic to participate in the first session of the league.

The only other figure at the peace conference comparable in ability and importance to President Wilson and Premier Clemenceau, was David Lloyd George, the British premier.

After all the severe criticism in the United States which has been directed against British dominancy in the peace conference, as it is alleged is evidenced by the granting of the British Empire six votes in the assembly of the league while all other nations, including the United States, have but one, it would seem improbable that Lloyd George would be selected to preside over the first session of the league held in the city of Washington.

English Family Took Chance Leaving 'Bawth' Behind

London, Oct. 17—You know, Friend Reader, the old wheeze about how an Englishman encumbers himself when he travels: Portable "bawth," shawl straps, golf clubs and what-not.

Well, it always seemed an exaggeration until one day on the platform of Paddington Station when the rush for the week-end holidays was on.

Here is what one family, composed of pops, mams, two small girls and a lad in knickerbockers, took with them: Four bicycles, six bags and suit cases, three tennis racquets, one cricket bat and the posts that go with that vivid game, two bags of golf clubs, two bundles of rugs, two model yachts. And papa was heard telling the porter that three trunks already had gone out on the first section.

DEFENDS SOVIET OF RUSSIA AS IDEAL BODY

Barbusse Accuses Allies of Tricking Masses by Weaving Campaign of Lies

Note: Henri Barbusse is one of the literary discoveries of the great war. His book, "Under Fire," unique as a human document depicting the soldier's soul-life, was translated into a dozen languages and created a world-wide sensation. Barbusse is a radical. Lately he has become the literary champion of that strong and political influential section of the French people that believes the Allied policy in Russia has been, and is, all wrong and that Bolshevism has been deliberately misrepresented by a systematic propaganda. This question is one of the dominant issues in the French election campaign now under way. The subjoined is one of a series of articles by the famous author.—Universal Service.

By HENRI BARBUSSE.
Special Cable Dispatch to Universal Service.

Paris, Oct. 16.—"I accuse!"

It was with this cry that in 1898 Emile Zola, an honest man, attacked the formidable social forces bent upon dishonoring and assassinating the guiltless martyr Dreyfus.

It is with this cry that honest folk rise today in righteous wrath against the international reactionism which with the most monstrous motive of class interest, and in order to save the old line of privileged barbarians, has undertaken to dishonor and assassinate by means of famine and bloodshed the great Russian republic whose only crime is the realisation of its dream of enfranchisement.

POISON PUBLIC OPINION.

We French proletarians accuse the directing spirits in America, France and England of having created an abominable campaign of calumny against Bolshevism; of having constructed, by the vilest and most arbitrary means, the promulgation of the truth—of having deformed and falsified the facts, as in the cases of Dreyfus and Caillaux—of having poisoned public opinion with the object of tricking the masses into war against their own cause—of having led to the people in order to betray them.

We accuse the international conservatism of imperialists, militarists and capitalists of having shamefully prevented through the voice of a venal press and a regime of anarchy and disorder a constitution which is the integrality socialistic.

The organic laws of the Russian Soviet Republic actually exist today—no matter who denies it. Moreover, whoever wishes to read them may do so. They are based upon equality and laws rightly governing human labor. They establish a community of Russian workers to assure for this community a direct governing franchise.

DEPRECATES ALL WAR.

Whatever may be the free preferences of individuals we declare that not only are these fundamental principles in conformity with reason and justice, but to the eyes of the most sensible and righteous men they appear as the only ones capable of obviating the future peril.

Two stains on society which are the theories of veritable madmen have been hitherto imposed upon the human race—the exploitation of the masses and the prosecution of wars, and it is just because of this—because of the stupendous significance and import of Bolshevist doctrine—that practicality, not because a few dictatorial measures have been taken by the people's commissaries which are justifiable and purely transitory consequences accompanying every constructive revolution—but our masters, our enemies, have decreed Calvary death to Russia.

STRIKING LONGSHOREMAN WAS TRYING NEW AUTO.

By Universal Service.

New York, Oct. 16.—Armand Scarmiliner, when arraigned in the New Jersey Avenue Court, Brooklyn, on a charge of speeding, said he was a longshoreman, and had been taking advantage of the strike to try out his new car, which he had purchased out of his savings.

The policeman who made the arrest said the car certainly showed some speed. Scarmiliner was released on a suspended sentence.

WEALTHY YOUNG WIDOW ROBBED OF JEWELS

Safe in New York Apartment Opened; Cracksmen Get $60,000 Haul

New York, Oct. 16.—The theft of jewelry valued at about $60,000 from the apartment of Mrs. Leyla Brandeis, widow of one of the most prominent merchants of Omaha, was made public today. The theft was committed on Sunday.

Mrs. Brandeis, who is an attractive young woman, came to New York city from London two weeks ago, having spent the Summer in England. Mrs. Brandeis went to Freeport, L. I., on Saturday to spend the week-end with her mother, and when she returned on Monday found the safe guarding the jewels broken open.

The safe was built into a closet of the apartment. The burglar or burglars pried the safe from the closet and by the use of a jimmy opened it and took the contents. The safe was afterwards found in the bathroom.

MAID SERVANT SOUGHT.

Although efforts were made to keep the theft a secret, it become known that a police alarm has been sent to fourteen cities requesting the arrest of a male servant who was employed in the Brandeis home. He is said to have disappeared within an hour after the robbery was discovered.

Although other orders were issued by the police cautioning Mrs. Brandeis and her servants against revealing the nature of the jewels stolen, a list was obtained.

It follows:

THE STOLEN JEWELS.

One pearl necklace made up of thirty-eight matched pearls.

One diamond chain containing eighty-six diamonds.

One diamond lavaliere.

One 18-karat gold watch set with diamonds and emeralds.

One large twin diamond and ruby ring.

In addition to the missing male servant now being sought by the police, two maids, a butler and a housekeeper, Mrs. Kate Douglas, were in the apartment when the robbery took place. It is believed by the police that this male servant, taking advantage of the absence of his employer, and working with professional burglars, admitted the latter when the other servants were asleep.

GIRL SUES LEXINGTON AUTOIST FOR $10,000

Clifford A. Currier of Lexington has been sued for $10,000 by Pasquilina Di Donato of Arlington, a minor, through her father, Sylvester Di Donato.

She alleges that on September 5 while walking near the corner of Massachusetts avenue and Mt. Vernon street, Arlington, she was struck by the defendant's automobile and was severely injured. Sylvester Di Donato, her father, sues Currier for $2,000 for the loss of his daughter's services and medical expenses.

Who Got Harvard Professor's Little Brown Derby?

Who got the professor's brown derby? That is the all important topic of conversation just now at Harvard. When and where did it go, and is it now profaning the dome of some mischievous sojh or junior?

It's an after-dinner story, mates! The Advocate, generally supposed to be the most staid as well as the oldest publication at Harvard, gave a punch to fittingly welcome its friends at its new home in Holyoke street. It was some festival, and a good time was had by all.

But when a certain professor got ready to start for home he found his Herbert Johnson was missing, and likewise a raincoat which matched the hat in color.

The editor of the Advocate when informed of the fact hurriedly outfitted their guest in a Charley Chaplin, and since that time have been spending their money advertising for the lost lid which had not been recovered up to this morning.

SUGAR FAMINE RELIEF NOW IN SIGHT

Relief for greater Boston in the present sugar shortage is promised with the arrival at this port of huge consignments of this commodity from Cuba, which will be placed on the market as soon as it can be refined.

The American steamship Manuta has arrived in port from Cardenas and Matanzas with 12,500 bags of sugar, weighing approximately 5,000,000 pounds, which will greatly relieve the existing shortage. The Manuta went to the American Sugar Refinery Wharf, South Boston, where she was unloaded without delay, in order that the much needed sugar may be put on the market as quickly as possible.

At the same pier the steamer Lake Beacon is discharging the last of a big sugar cargo.

Two other big shipments of sugar are now en route from Cuba to Boston in the holds of the American steamers Lake Duane, due to arrive October 20, from Santiago, and Lake Annetta, from Cardenas and Matanzas, expected in the latter part of this week.

Each vessel has about 5,000,000 pounds of sugar, the arrival of which will be hailed with joy by all who have been compelled by force of circumstances to go without their customary amount of sugar since the scarcity became acute.

Killing of Girl by French Soldiers Stirs Germans

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND,

Berlin, Oct. 16.—Anti-French feeling in the occupied districts has been increased by the alleged unprovoked killing of a seventeen-year-old German girl, Katherine Arnold, by French soldiers at Ludwigshaven.

Fraulein Arnold was returning from a theatre with another girl, the two being escorted by French soldiers stationed at Ludwigshaven, when five French soldiers passed, suddenly turned and fired on the Arnold girl. The latter was struck in the heart. The assailants were arrested.

Chief Delaney has had a long session in the navy, this being his seventeenth consecutive year. He saw service at Tangiers, Morocco, in 1911, and was present when it looked as if there would be hostilities with Mexico.

The boy was left alone in the tenement when his mother, Mrs. Maria Harlo, went to work. The doors were locked. After the fire was discovered the boy was found cuddled up in bed with his pet dog in his arms.

Filene's from hats to shoes —from street floor to sixth VALUE!

A mystic number and what it meant:

WE WERE taking a little trip through a fur work shop. Scattered around were fur coats and scarfs in various stages of preparation.

These furs were being made up for stores all over the United States.

Each fur had a ticket on it with instructions.

None of the tickets, however, told to what store the furs were going.

As we went along, every now and then, an unusually glossy or finely furred skin caught our glance. Involuntarily we looked at the code number, though it meant nothing to us—mere advertising writer!

But gradually one number thrust itself upon us, for we met it so often when we were attracted by a fur that stood out for sheer beauty.

The number was "FORTY-EIGHT."

The trip over, we returned to the office. There we rejoined the Filene fur expert—who by the way is a real expert, who knows every aspect of the fur business from raw pelts to finished garments.

Before him was a huge pile of pelts. Some he was throwing aside as unworthy. Some he looked at admiringly and placed in another pile.

A hundred untrimmed hats $3.75—no duplicates

Materials such as one doesn't usually find in untrimmed hats at $3.75—hatters' plush, panne velvets, finer quality velvets, some faced with beaver. AND—nearly 100 sizes and shapes to choose from!

(Filene's—mail orders filled—street floor)

LARGER WOMEN'S wool jersey dresses, $45

What takes the pounds off a larger woman's silhouette like long-line jersey dresses? Especially when the dresses have silk embroidered tablier vests, reaching below the waist line, and string belted overskirts. $45. A separate Filene shop of larger women's dresses.

(Filene's—mail orders filled—sixth floor)

$20 and $22.50 for remarkable dresses in the Women's Inexpensive Shop

Where there isn't such intense specialization, lower price dresses are very apt to get the short end of the buyer's attention. Here, where there is an organization whose entire time is given to dresses at $22.50 and less, such remarkable little frocks as these are the result:

Sketched right: Women's long line serge chemise dresses, with one sided panel tunic skirts. The serge will bear close scrutiny. $22.50.

Sketched left: Women's embroidered serge dresses in new low waistline effect, modified by a long sash. $20.

In all, there are no less than 17 styles in women's serge dresses at $20 and 15 at $22.50. Practically every one of the materials in favor are here at $20 and $22.50—tricotines, velours, wool jerseys, Georgette, satins, velveteens. Other serge dresses in this shop, too.

GUARDIAN SHOES—girls' and misses'

Filene Guardian shoes for misses and girls are built on lasts specially constructed to meet the needs of growing feet. Feet that have been well bred in Guardian shoes grow up with strong, healthy arches, straight feet, and no corns or bunions. Guardian shoes are sold only in the Filene girls' and misses' shoe shop.

And this fourth floor shoe shop has an atmosphere all its own—the only exclusive girls' shoe shop we know of. Nothing but shoes for girls and young women who want emphatically youthful footwear.

ESTRANGED 24 YEARS, WIFE WINS SEPARATION

Lawrence, Oct. 16—After living apart from her husband for the past 24 years, Mrs. Annie L. Greenwood of Haverhill was granted a separate maintenance from William Greenwood of Haverhill by Judge Harry H. Dow in court here. He was ordered to pay $7 weekly to the support of his wife and $15 extra for the expense of the hearing.

The court found that she had been living away from her husband for a justifiable cause and therefore granted the decree in her favor. They were married in 1885 and separated in 1895.

EUROPE IN NEED OF BIG CREDITS, SAYS FILENE

Boston Merchant Urges Laws to Permit Heavy Buying of Raw Material

A trade wall about the United States as has been advocated in some quarters would not insure lower prices at home, believes Edward A. Filene, president of William Filene's Sons Company, back from a six months' study of industrial conditions abroad. As president of the National Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Filene travelled in the principal countries of Europe, making a first-hand investigation of conditions in each. He returned with the membership of four European commercial missions.

If the United States should stop exports, he declared, Europe would be thrown into chaos. In the commodities of which we produce a surplus prices might drop temporarily, he believes, followed by disruption of the industries producing them with consequent reversal of high prices. By that time, he declares, we would find all Europe in a state similar to that of Russia today.

WAR ONLY HALF WON.

A broader policy of industrial benevolence must be adopted by America if Europe is to be saved, said Mr. Filene. While he found the situation rather gloomy in many countries, he found a ray of hope in the gleam of light in the willingness of the people to get back to work and again become productive.

"The war is only half won," he declared. "Europe is in the position of a citizen assaulted by a highwayman and seriously wounded. The United States must bind the wounds if the nations over there are to recover and become factors in the world's prosperity."

European countries are handicapped in restoring their industries by the lack of raw materials, declares Mr. Filene. These they must buy from the United States. In addition to the already high prices they must pay ocean freight and the difference in rate of exchange. The latter ranged from 25 to 800 per cent. above normal value. This makes trading with America almost prohibitive, although trade restrictions have been practically removed by foreign governments, he asserts.

SUGGESTS CURATIVE MEASURES.

Here lies the solution of Europe's troubles by the United States as the Boston man sees it.

He proposes that a system of long term loans be arranged for those nations in this country. Such credit would be used to buy raw materials in America, without paying the exorbitant rate of exchange. With raw materials foreign industries could be resumed, the nations would become producers and when the time came to repay the loans in five or ten years, he believes, the exchange would have returned to normal. A fair rate of interest would, of course, be included in the loans.

Europe's problems are entirely economic, Mr. Filene believes. In France he found the government is subsidizing the flour business to the extent of billions of francs annually in order that bread, which is really the staff of life to a Frenchman, can be kept at a price within his reach. Such a condition cannot go on indefinitely, he pointed out.

If the people are kept idle and without food and comforts, Mr. Filene predicted, they will become the prey of irresponsible revolutionary propaganda, which will in time infect the rest of the nations.

CO-OPERATION IS NEEDED.

"It is easy to see what would be the result to the United States commercially," he said. "All Europe would be like Russia and no American firm attempts to do business with Russia now.

"The purpose of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States is bringing to America the distinguished men who compose the Belgian, French, British and Italian missions," Mr. Filene said. "It is to give Americans everywhere a chance to meet them face to face, to ask them questions, to confer with them, and thereupon to make up their minds as to conditions in Europe and what they want to do about it."

"Thereupon the business men of the United States will, I feel sure, be prepared to help organize means by which co-operation can be made effective, trade relations be re-established and the work of the world thus be enabled to resume normal progress.

WAR NOT YET OVER.

"The war is not over—it is just as much a part of our responsibility to assist in restoring the world as it was to assist in delivering the final fighting blow and the consequences to ourselves of failure to meet this responsibility would be just as serious as would have been our falling down in the German drive a year ago last Summer. It is a fortunate thing for the American people that these important men who have intimate knowledge of European conditions and their relation to the whole world situation have come here to exchange their views with us.

"My own impressions of the last six months can be briefly given in a few words. Five years of unprecedented production. No theories of new division of what wealth is left will put the world back to what it was before the war. Nothing but intensive production can do that.

MUST SUPPLY EUROPE.

"If half the world produces intensively and the other half that produced intensively before the war is idle it will take at least ten years to restore the world balance of necessities and comforts, and in the meantime the idle people, lacking food and comforts, will be the prey of irresponsible revolutionary propaganda, which will in time infect the rest of the nations.

"The people of the United States have the good will and the common sense not to allow this to happen to Europe and the world. They will make it impossible when they understand the conditions in which the war has left Europe. To get Europe back to work and make it safe against revolution arising from famine and idleness we must send them food and raw materials and machinery which are primarily needed.

WILL REALIZE RETURN.

"In time Europe will pay us back with her production, but it until they can get production properly going again, they cannot obtain proper credits, then they must not only buy from us what they need at double pre-war prices, but also must buy our dollars to pay for these purchases at almost an unbearable increase over the pre-war value of the dollar.

"This means that many of the European countries, impoverished and exhausted by the long war, must not only pay the present high price in America for a bushel of wheat, but must pay also such a price of exchange that the price will be too high to be within reach of the masses. There can be no greater danger to stable production and stable government in any country than that only the richer classes can buy the necessities of life.

"If the world is to be made safe," stated Mr. Filene, "we cannot allow this to happen. We must see that we furnish credits necessary to avoid such a catastrophe. Not credits to pay the expenses of European governments or to replace proper and just taxation in any country, but credits that are absolutely necessary to get the world back at work again.

MORAL DUTY IS CLEAR.

"On moral and ethical grounds our duty is clear, but on business grounds the necessity is just as definite. If we do our duty it will not only show the spirit that is within us but it will also be a great advantage to us. For when Europe gets back to work again, she will repay us the loan we make, and we shall then have a large amount of money which otherwise would not have been saved. We shall be richer by billions if we act generously now.

"When our people really understand the dangers Europe is in as a result of the war, they will not hesitate for a moment to be as generous with their material aid as they have been with their military help.

"Everywhere abroad there are strikes and revolutionary movements. There is no basic remedy for these except in food and work. But food and work cannot come to Europe except with the help that will come from the American people when they have a clear understanding of the European situation."

ARMY METHODS RIDICULED BY 'T. B. GERM'

Connecticut Expert Voices Criticism of System Used in Draft

Providence, Oct. 16—What a rampant tubercle bacillus said to Dr. Stephen J. Maher, chairman of the Connecticut State Tuberculosis Commission, formed part of the discussion at the fifth annual tuberculosis conference here today. According to Dr. Maher the bacillus discouraged as follows:

"Army methods. If the methods were good methods, undoubtedly the Army Medical Corps, because it is a well-oiled machine, would get me, but the methods used by the American army, and, in fact, by every army engaged in the last war, to encompass my destruction, were ludicrous beyond description.

"The civil physicians who examined the drafted men made some mistakes, but the army physicians who re-examined at the camps made more mistakes. The army method of physical examination was devised for the benefit of the feeble-minded of the army doctors to save them from thinking but, of course, it applied to the able-minded of the army doctors as well. These it prevented from thinking. The resulting diagnoses were both tragic and comic.

"STUMBLING IMITATION."

"As to the army's method of treating my army victims, it was merely a stumbling and halting imitation of the well methods of pre-war times—absolutely nothing new.

"And as to the army's method of keeping me from making new victims in the [illegible] method. True, I didn't make many new victims in the army, but nobody in or out of the army knows why."

Summing up the lessons of the war with regard to tuberculosis, the speaker said:

"The war has taught us that the breaks in our knowledge of the tubercle bacillus prevent us from conquering the tubercle bacillus.

"The war has taught the need of further tuberculosis research, and by implication has indicated that we who have the direction of the large sums of public money and the enormous amount of public enthusiasm now engaged in the anti-tuberculosis campaign, owe it to the public to develop a greater and more intensive campaign of research than we have hitherto attempted.

"The war has taught us that large medical military organizations are not capable of advancing our knowledge of tuberculosis, and that in the future, as in the past, we must put our dependence for results on the enthusiastic workers in the small wards and laboratories of hospitals and sanatoria and dispensaries, and on the observant physicians of private practice."

300 DELEGATES PRESENT.

There are 300 delegates at the conference, which continues through tomorrow. Other speakers were: Dr. Donald B. Armstrong of Framingham, who described his entire community is combined to fight the disease; Dr. Allen K. Krause, editor of the American Review of Tuberculosis; Dr. C. E. A. Winslow of Yale, Dr. Eugene R. Kelly, Dr. Edward Otis and Dr. Seymour Stone of Boston, Dr. L. B. Bristol of Augusta, Me., Dr. W. H. Brown of Bridgeport, Dr. Robert B. Kerr of Manchester, N. H., Dr. Charles Duncan of Concord, N. H., Dr. H. A. Patterson of New York, Miss Mary E. Marshall of New York, Dr. Louis I. Dublin of New York, Dr. Charles V. Chapin of Providence and Dr. F. C. Bartlett of Framingham.

At tomorrow's session plans will be completed for the New England section of the Red Cross Christmas Seal Fund, devoted to the campaign against the disease, which, this year, is to total seven million dollars. The allotments for the New England States will be as follows: Massachusetts, $300,000; New Hampshire, $100,000; Connecticut, $150,000; Maine, $85,00; Rhode Island, $60,000; Vermont, $40,000.

Champion Girl Peach Pitter Makes $20 Daily Wage

Yuba City, Cal., Oct. 16—Marysville, the county seat of Yuba County, just across the Feather River from this place, has the distinction of being the home of the champion peach pitter of California and the world.

Margaret Myers is her name and she is earning from $16 to $20 a day in a local cannery pitting peaches.

Many young women are earning more than $16 a day in the local canneries, and for that reason it is impossible to secure women, either in Marysville or Yuba City, for housework.

Sutter County growers are getting $55 a ton this year for their peaches, the best price ever paid in the State.

URGES 80 PER CENT. RAISE IN NAVY PAY

Washington, Oct. 16—To enable naval officers and men to cope with the high cost of living, Rear Admiral McGowan, chief of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, recommended to the House Naval Affairs Committee that the pay schedules be increased to a point 80 per cent. above the rates of 1914. This would involve an additional yearly expenditure of $131,000,000, he said.

Thereafter frequent readjustments of the pay standards should be made, the admiral said, in order to keep the money at a level with the cost of living.

PROTEST PLANS TO SLICE EDGE OF COMMON

Patriotic Societies Aroused by Talk of Widening Tremont and Boylston Streets

Shall Boston Common be sliced to relieve traffic congestion?

Or shall Tremont and Boylston streets be made a one-way route between Scollay Square and Charles street?

Prominent business men and patriotic defendents of the Common are to thresh this question out at a public hearing before the street commission tomorrow at 11 o'clock.

The congestion is so great on the two thoroughfares that the commission feels that they must make a "one way" from Scollay Square up Tremont to Boylston and along Boylston to Charles street.

WOMAN STARTS FIGHT.

The Boston Common Society, through Mrs. J. S. Brown of No. 50 Pinckney street, has already filed its protest. Mrs. Brown called at the Mayor's office today and announced the intention of the society to fight the taking of even so much as a foot of this historic ground.

On the other hand business men will claim that to make these greatly traveled streets one way will handicap them, and that there should be some other way out of the situation.

They will point out that on the Boylston street side of the Common there is a gravel walk twenty-five feet wide and little used which could be taken to widen the street.

WOULD SLICE OFF MALL.

No damage would be done to the Common by this action, they will assert, and it is something that must be done, now or later, when Boston's growing business interests compel it.

On the Tremont street side a portion of Lafayette mall could be taken without harming the Common, business men contend. Used for a street it would serve a good purpose and be much more sightly than the subway structures, they will contend.

Chairman John J. O'Callaghan of the street commission would not say today what would be the action of the street commissioners should the opposition to making these streets one way arteries of traffic be practically unanimous.

THREE HELD IN PLOT TO STEAL $1,000,000

Chicago, Oct. 16.—James Novak, James Dwyer, and Dan Hayes, Camp Grant watchmen, arrested by Army Intelligence officers, were held today while an effort was made to locate two other men who, army officers say, were implicated with them in a plot to rob the finance offices of the camp of more than $1,000,000 kept there for the payroll today.

Captain Robert Howie, of the Army Intelligence Bureau, said that while the three refused to confess to their part in the plot he had learned that they aided in a plan to secure a quantity of nitroglycerine that was to be delivered at the camp today.

BIBLE AGAINST LEAGUE, MINISTER DECLARES

That the League of Nations has the prophecy of the Bible against it was the statement made today by Rev. H. B. Killam at the Boston conference of prophecy and the Jews in Park Street Church. He said the league eventually would come under the control of anti-Christ, according to the prophecies of Daniel and St. John.

Rev. Joseph Cohn scored the teachers in the University of Chicago. "That institution is an incubator of infidels," he declared. "They are circulating frightful poison about Christianity that is polluting the minds of many young men and young women."

TO EXHIBIT DRAWINGS OF AMERICAN HEROES

An exhibition of John Elliott's drawings of distinguished young Americans, who sacrificed their lives in the war, will be held at the Copley gallery, Clarendon street, from October 20 to November 1, for the benefit of the Permanent Blind Relief Fund. The exhibition was arranged by Mrs. John Elliott, whose father, Dr. Samuel Gridley Howe, founded the Perkins Institution for the Blind.

Ocean forecast—Steamships leaving Boston and New York today for Europe will have moderate south to west winds and overcast, showery weather to the Grand Banks.

The sailing of the steamship City of Rome for Savannah reported on the 16th inst. was premature.

The Swedish-American Steamship Line has established a permanent service between Boston and ports in Sweden. Two steamships are now well on their way to this port and a third, the Baltic, sailed from Gothenburg yesterday for Boston. The company plans to have weekly sailings from Boston in the new service.

Among the passengers sailing today on the United Fruit liner Copperanne for Havana was Rafaele Carrito, the Italian consul at Boston. He will be aboard for three or four weeks on official business. The Copperanne carries a full cargo, including sugar mill machinery to completely equip a large mill. Much of the machinery was too large to go into the hold and was stowed on deck.

SWEARS HE SAW HASSAN FIRE FATAL SHOT

Contradictory Evidence Adduced in Salem Trial for Coffee House Killing

Salem, Oct. 16.—Witnesses today offered contradictory testimony before Judge Callahan and a jury in the Salem Court, where Imbrian and Sulaiman Hassan are being tried for the alleged murder of Ali Hassan, a brother of one of the defendants. The crime was committed in a coffee house, in this city, on Oct. 18, 1918.

The most important witness today was Ahmed Mustafa. He testified that he saw Imbrian Hassan fire the shot which killed Ali Hassan. He also stated he saw Ali Hassan stab Sulaiman Hassan by the neck, and, after the shot was fired, Ali exclaimed "You shoot me."

CONTRADICTORY TESTIMONY.

The witness testified in flat contradiction of Hassan Ahmed, proprietor of the coffee house where the man had been drinking coffee earlier in the evening.

Hassan Ahmed testified that Imbrian did not go out of the coffee house until after the shots were fired. He told of the row which took place in his coffee house just before the shooting.

According to his version, Sulaiman bit Ali over the head with a bottle. Following this, the witness declared he put Sulaman out of the place. Ali, with Imbrian, went out later, and, as further testimony revealed, Hassan Ahmed heard shots two or three minutes later.

STRUCK WITH BOTTLE.

Answering the question of the district attorney, Hassan Ahmed testified that Imbrian did not go out until after he had heard those shots.

Mustafa took the stand. He declared he went to the coffee house on the night of the crime and saw Imbrian, Sulaman and Ali in the place.

Imbrian, he said, was seated at a table. Soon Ali went over to this table and a quarrel began. Ali, according to Mustafa, struck Sulaman. Then he saw Sulaman strike him with a bottle.

Great difficulty is being encountered in this trial because of the impossibility of procuring interpreters who thoroughly understand English and Kurdish languages.

MANY ARE HELD UP BY TIE-UP IN SUBWAY

Brakeshoe Fails to Work and Stalls Car on Park Street Loop

Thousands of persons on their way to work were delayed early today when an inward bound Jamaica Plain car and trailer stalled on the Park street loop. The loop was cleared shortly before 8 o'clock and lasted for thirty minutes, kept many of the passengers in cars below the surface between the entrance to the subway and the Park street station.

A shoe-bound wheel on the trailer is given as the cause of the tie-up. The air brakes on the trailer would not work either to release the bound wheel or to make a tighter grip. The jam was cleared after the loading car had been detached and continued outward bound through the subway. The trailer was pushed to a spur track by the following car.

The car had just discharged its passengers at the Park street station and was rounding the loop prior to starting the outward bound trip when the brakeshoe locked the wheel, making it impossible to move.

Inward bound cars were diverted over the lines along Boylston street to Park square, to Elliot street and then down town.

WAKEFIELD TO DECIDE HIGH SCHOOL QUESTION

Wakefield citizens will decide the question of constructing a new high school at a special meeting next Monday. About a year ago a price of $700,000 was reported to a town meeting as the cost of a new structure. Citizens objected to such a high price and the committee was instructed to obtain a cheaper one. The latest bid of $450,000 will be acted on Monday.

U. S. STYLES WIN OVER FRENCH, SAYS EXPERT

Cleo Mayfield Caused Sensation in Paris with Exclusive Gown Designs

That the American girl need take no back seat when brought into competition for beauty and style with her French sisters, was shown some time ago by Cleo Mayfield, who is starring with Cecil Lean in "Look Who's Here," at the Colonial Theatre, in a competition with some of the most prominent French beauties. Miss Mayfield outshone them in the very stronghold of popularity—the Grand Prix, Paris.

It was at a showing of the newest styles, when exclusive and extravagant dealings were the order of the day. Miss Mayfield so far eclipsed her rivals that the French favorites were green with envy. Perhaps the secret of the victory was that she is her own designer. The skill of the color artist combined with the "chic" and beauty of the woman herself, to in herself has given her an advantage over the more modest American girl.

Following that triumph, she has been showing some of her winning designs on the American stage, as have other who have seen "Look Who's Here" are aware.

"A little more confidence on the part of our women is all that is needed," said the star. "The French girl by no means minimized her personality, and the confidence she feels in herself has given her an advantage over the more modest American girl."

Washington Fed on Oysters Fattened by Fresh Water

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 16.—Here is the latest "shell" game.

Shippers of oysters have been letting the bivalves soak for considerable time in fresh water, for which the average oyster has quite a capacity. It absorbs so much of it that the weight and volume are increased from one-fifth to one-fourth, and the public pays for the water at the same rate as for the oysters.

In making this announcement today, officials of the Department of Agriculture said they would invoke the Federal food and drug act in an effort to end the practice.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Oct. 16.—Rainy weather in the Southwest sent first prices up in the cotton market. Wall Street and Japanese buyers were large buyers on the call, getting the cotton from Liverpool and the South. At the end of fifteen minutes the market had reacted a trifle, but was steady at a net advance of 17 to 18 points. Opening prices were: October, 34.80, up 52; December, 34.40, up 37; January, 34.40, up 50; March, 33.90, up 33; May, 33.70, up 25.

American Cinema Corporation

10 to 100 Share Lots

Many people not accustomed to stock transactions want to buy shares in American Cinema Corporation, but do not know exactly how to go about it. The stock is being offered for public subscription at $10 per share all over the United States. As the supply is limited we anticipated a large over subscription, and secured a block of the stock which we will sell direct to purchasers at $10 net per share for any number of shares from 10 to 100 shares so long as our allotment lasts.

PRICES RULED HIGHER AT OPENING

Trading Interest Still Devoted to the Same Industrial Leaders

The Boston market had a quiet opening, with prices showing slightly higher for a majority of active stocks. There had been no change in sentiment among local operators overnight, and trading interest was focused on the same securities which had been its centre for weeks. Root & Van Dervoort sold at its record highest price during the morning, and Elder at the highest it has reached since its lighting on this exchange. This stock and National Leather were among the most active.

Largest advances during the forenoon were by Gray & Davis, Root & Van Dervoort, Elder, Edison, American Telephone, Fairbanks and Mohawk. They were up from one to more than two points, with Root & Van Dervoort leading in this respect. Among stocks to decline were Fairbanks & Bingham, National Leather, New Cornelia, Boston & Maine, Copper Range, Old Dominion, Quincy, and United Shoe. They receded from fractions to two points, with Old Dominion the weakest.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

Mill stocks have been strong at recent auction sales. U. S. Worsted first preferred sold at 96¾, an advance of 12¾ from the price at the previous sale.

Louis Le B. Haight, formerly in charge at the London office of Redmond & Co., and lately with the National City Co., has become associated with the Boston office of the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York.

Charles Sudbury, Boston membership of Chicago Board of Trade, petitioned for transfer to James Butler (wrong). It is intended that the price was $12,000, unchanged from that of the last sale and comparing with the year's lowest of $9,500.

Oil Stock Boom in Paris

Paris, Oct. 16.—A remarkable boom has struck the Bourse and there is heavy buying of American, British and neutral industrial shares. News of fortunes made in oil in the United States has stimulated French investing. There is considerable illegal buying of francs for export.

New York Sub-Treasury Gain

New York, Oct. 16.—The sub-treasury gained $5,000 from the banks on Wednesday, making the cash net gain since Friday of $1,221,000.

OILS LEADERS IN EARLY ADVANCE

Steels and Motors Uncertain in Price Movement During Morning

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were irregular in New York at noon, having reacted somewhat in the second hour. Oils remained leaders as regards gains, while steels and motors were unsettled as to trend during the morning. They were both higher and lower as groups, the range of the former being particularly narrow. Pan-American established itself at a new high record price, after opening at a decline. Among motors Chandler continued the feature for strength, selling up to 139½. American Woolen common showed more than seven points gain at its highest.

Issues to advance materially during the forenoon included Baldwin, American Locomotive, American Can, American Sugar, American Writing Paper preferred, Corn Products, International Paper, Kelly Springfield, Bethlehem Motor, Mexican Petroleum, Industrial Alcohol and New York Air Brake. They were up from one to more than four points at their best, but were all below top figures at noon, General Motors showed more than three points gain during the forenoon, but was off two at 12 o'clock. Studebaker was then showing a loss instead of a gain.

Atlantic Gulf was off three points. The market was active, the day's transactions totalling about 350,000 shares. Call money was quoted at 10 per cent. Foreign exchange rates were lower.

At the opening prices were a little higher in most instances, and the tone was firm. Advances, like declines, averaged small. The market appeared to be hesitant and awaiting developments. Putting the call rate up to 15 per cent. late yesterday had a restraining effect upon speculation. It is the second time that rate has been set that high this week. It indicates the conservative attitude of banking interests in regard to money circulation, and also that the West is finding use for its money at home where high rates ruled by Wall Street has not drawn much money to that quarter from the interior as yet. Oils were strong as a class at the outset, which was true of motors. Shipping shares and equips had an upward trend. Steels were irregular. U. S. Steel opening a shade lower, but recovering its loss quickly. Initial gains ranged from fractions to nearly three points and the largest loss was less than a point. The early price range was unusually narrow and demonstrated uncertainty on the part of traders. Change was slow in coming out, but opened at the highest figure yet quoted for the new stock. Bethlehem Motor began with more than two points advance, but soon lost most of it. Before the end of an hour prices had worked a trifle higher.

LABOR SHORTAGE CAUSES RICH FARMER TO RETIRE

Junction City, Kan., Oct. 16.—Because labor was so hard to get, even at the present high wages for farm laborers, Charles Wahle, one of the biggest farmers in Geary County, has decided to retire from the farm and to rent or lease his 1,400 acres. He will probably rent his ranch in small tracts if he can get tenants.

CHAIN STORES

Their Place in the Industrial Field

Some of the greatest developments in the business world in the next ten years will be along the lines of chain stores. The character of the business offers advantages in safety for investment equalled by few.

Chain store systems have contributed enormously toward the economical distribution of low-priced commodities of all sorts. The Chain Store Organization is demonstrating the fact that it is an indispensable part of our industrial system, and will be a big factor in reducing the cost of merchandise.

The retail business is the largest in the world and when conducted through chains of stores, is the most profitable of any great branch of industry. Merchandise will be distributed in the future, largely by chain store organizations, as they can do business on the most economical basis. The soundness of the fundamental idea of the chain store has been proved conclusively and holders of chain store securities naturally profit thereby.

We offer Preferred Stock issues of some Chain Store Propositions that possess all the qualities of an excellent investment

PADDLE YOUR OWN CANOE!

If you're an average American there's one thing you want to do above all others—and that is, paddle your own canoe! You don't want anyone butting into your affairs; you want to be absolutely independent.

Independence in life—the ability to pay our own way, to supply ourselves with comforts and perhaps luxuries, and in our later years to look forward serenely to an old age free from want and worry, dependent upon no one—that's the supreme aim of us all. To the ambitious, red-blooded man or woman, dependence upon someone else to get along in the world is but little better than slavery.

There's just one way to win our independence, and that is to accumulate enough money to take us comfortably through life. And the only way that the nine out of ten of us who aren't cherishing sweet expectations of inheriting wealth will be able to accumulate this money is by SAVING.

"This is a fine time to preach saving!" perhaps you say. "When it costs so much to live!" Well, it is hard to save now, but by wise management and careful spending you can save, be it ever so little. Just remember two things: First, the people who really amount to something are the ones who can conquer obstacles; second, unless you have money coming to you the only way in this world that you will ever get ahead is by SAVING.

START SAVING NOW—TODAY! Lay aside each week or month a certain part of your income and deposit it in a savings account. No matter what the sum is—it's the habit of depositing regularly that counts. Go to your local national bank or trust company whose name appears here. They'll guard your savings faithfully, pay you good interest—usually beginning monthly—allow you the use of valuable credit and checking facilities, and the officers will take a personal interest in your success as a fellow townsman.

'PERFECT BABY' SEEN IN AUTO WITH 4 MEN

Alleged Abductors Were Poorly Dressed; Mother of Famous Child Suffers Collapse

By Universal Service.

Hammonton, N. J., Oct. 16.—Detectives investigating the disappearance of little Billy Dansey, the famous "perfect baby" have established the fact that the child was seen with two strange men about 11 o'clock on the morning he vanished from his home. The men and the boy were seen about two miles southwest of the Dansey home, about an hour after he had been missed from his father's farm.

While the clue seems to be the most promising developed so far, others are still being followed. One young woman reported discovering the footprints of a child leading toward an irrigation ditch a short distance from the Dansey farm. Another reported seeing a child resembling pictures of the missing boy in an auto with four poorly dressed men on the main street of Hammonton about 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the day he disappeared. Searchers feel certain that the boy has been kidnapped.

The mother of the boy is in a serious condition as a result of worry over his disappearance and her husband has been obliged to refrain from taking any part in the search in order to remain with her.

Paris, Oct. 16.—The supreme council notified the German government that the sale of merchant vessels to private companies in Holland during the war has been declared void.

BARNES SAYS BAN ON GRAIN WILL BE LIFTED

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 16.—In an address before the Grain Dealers' Association here, Julius H. Barnes, director of the United States Grain Corporation, predicted that the export and import restrictions on wheat would be removed within a short time.

He advised the trade to prepare for such a change.

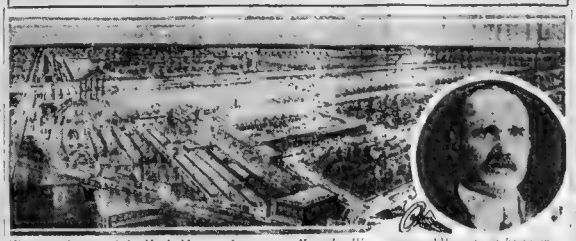
NASH MOTORS CO. OUTGROWS BIG PLANT



The great factory of the Nash Motors Company at Kenosha, Wis. ... will soon be forged to take care of the increasing demand for the Nash ... and Nash trucks. In circle, ... W. Nash, president of the corporation

The announcement coming ... Kenosha that the Nash Motor ... pany, which has been in ... only three years, ... facilities of its present large ... and has been forced to build another factory in Milwaukee for the manufacture of a new Nash four-cylinder car is one of the most interesting ... since the early days of the industry ... which phenomenal growth was ... rule rather than the exception.

The Nash growth is all the ... remarkable when it is remembered that during practically two of ... years the country was at war and ... business conditions abnorma...

The present Kenosha factory ... one of the largest and best equipped in the industry, in the second year under the Nash regime did a volume of upwards of $47,000,000 worth of business. Its output for the present fiscal year is 40,000 passenger cars and 8,000 trucks.

Although the Nash Company is not yet ready to make public the details of the Four as to the size ... type of motor, etc., it has been made known that this car has been in the course of designing, perfecting and refining for the last twelve months and that it has been subjected to very thorough road tests during this period.

Forty acres of ground have been purchased in Milwaukee and contracts are already at work erecting a factory there for the exclusive manufacture of the four-25 under car. It is expected that this Nash plant will be finished well within a year and that the new car will be in production sometime before September 1, 1920.

WAR GAS VICTIM TAKES AXE TO MOTHER

Insane Veteran Has Been Worried by Alleged Neglect of Government

New Bedford, Oct. 16.—Suffering from the effects of gas which he received while fighting in the St. Mihiel salient, Elmer Coderie suddenly became insane and attacked his mother with an axe at their home, No. 142 Deane street. Mrs. Coderie escaped from her son's clutches and ran to the house of a neighbor. When she returned with help her son had disappeared.

Later the young man appeared at an Acushnet avenue store where his brother is employed and threatened the workers there with death. The occupants of the store fled, and Coderie was left in sole possession of the place. Finally his brother quieted him and took him home. He was placed under restraint, and was committed to the asylum at Taunton today.

Young Coderie came home in July. He had a splendid war record, but had been gassed in the St. Mihiel battle. He told his family that he was to be sent by the government to a school in Boston to learn a trade, and appeared to be depressed when he received no notice to report for instruction.

RESUME TRIAL OF LONG ON FRIDAY

Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 16.—The trial of George A. Long, a farmer of Plainfield, charged with the murder of Mrs. Blanche C. Brown, is to be resumed tomorrow, it is probable.

Juror Thomas J. Farrell of Montpelier has practically recovered from the threatened attack of influenza. The other jurymen, John Steward and Charles W. Codding, who were believed to have symptoms of influenza, have made good recoveries under care of Dr. Waldo H. Hawkins. All were put with the other jurors this morning, which has been practically by the doctor as a means of keeping the jury in shape.

Long passed the day quietly in his cell, playing cards.

Mrs. Isabelle J. Parker, the 70 year-old widow who is jointly accused with Long of the murder of Mrs. Brown-well, and whose trial will directly follow the completion of Long's trial, was sick and remained in bed. Her condition is not considered serious.

How Much Profit Do You Pay Us?

The United States Department of Agriculture informs us that you as an average American Citizen, eat about one hundred and eighty-two pounds of meat (181.83 lbs.) in a year.

Based on these figures, if you had purchased all of your meat foods from us, Swift & Company would have profited to the extent of 48½ cents during the first eight months of our present fiscal year.

In that eight months we averaged to make two-fifths of a cent on each pound of meat and all other products sold.

This profit you paid us equals 6 cents a month—or just about one street car fare.

More than 30,000 shareholders looking to us as trustees of their invested money, had to be paid a reasonable return out of your 6 cents a month. Volume alone made this possible.

Now figure for yourself how Government interference in the operations of the packing business is going to reduce your meat bill!

Let us send you a Swift "Dollar." It will interest you. Address Swift & Company, Union Stock Yards, Chicago, Ill.

How to Keep Baby Smiling and Well

See that the daily functions are regular and normal

YOU can't expect the little ones to be happy and playful when the head feels dull and the stomach bloated. The normal habit of children is to be happy and when you notice them cross and fretful you will usually find constipation is responsible.

Perhaps they have missed that daily function so necessary to comfort and health. Look at the tongue and see if the breath is bad. Watch for belching. These are the tell-tale symptoms of constipation. Tonight give a little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which you can buy at any drug store for 50c and $1 a large bottle, and it will act in the morning and the troublesome symptoms promptly disappear.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. Unlike the harsher physics it acts gently and without griping so that while grown-ups can use it freely it can also be given to a tiny baby with perfect safety. Thousands of American families would not think of being without a bottle in the house for the emergency arises almost daily when it is needed.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling laxative in the world, there are over 6 million bottles sold each year, many who need its benefits have not yet used it. If you have not, send your name and address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 517 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

When you hear of a singer getting $2,000 a night for singing a few songs, you want to remember that he can't sing every night or even every second night and there are four-fifths of the months in the year when he doesn't sing at all.

Remember also that the big fee of the artist is by no means net. The average artist has a payroll of employes that would stagger the average actor. In the first place he has a manager. The best have a booking agent. He has a secretary, a singing coach an up-to-date pianist and a...

CARRIED OWN TRUNK.

I was reading about the strike of...longshoremen in the wireless newspaper on the La France when I was approaching New York last week. I believe they want a dollar and a half an hour. That doesn't sound like a terrible lot but at least it's all theirs when they get it.

But when the ship got in I found out that the gentlemen are pretty important people. There wasn't a man to carry our trunks off the deck, and finally I had to turn to and shoulder my own big trunk and carry it down the pier to a waiting taxicab. I am a pretty big fellow and think my strength is unusual, but I can tell you after I had carried that trunk the length of the pier I reappreciated those longshoremen, even if I was angry with them for not postponing their strike till I got ashore.

"Then, why don't you take up longshore work instead of singing?" asked the reporter.

Maybe I will when my voice goes back on me," declared O'Sullivan.

ALLOW OPERA SINGERS TO ENTER THIS PORT

The singers were detained from ...season in this country on the ...ground that they came within the ...ing of the contract labor law. They are on their way to join the Italian Opera Company.

FISH MAN LOSES $4,300 ROLL GOING TO ROXBURY

David Prevor, a Lowell street fish dealer, complained to the police that his roll of $4,300 was missing. He said he went to the fish pier Monday bought some fish, then rode to his son's home in Roxbury, and when he returned to his own home in the West End his money was gone.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for ready-prepared cough syrups by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it really has the equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour it into a pint bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. (If you prefer syrup instead of sugar use honey this way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly and is a family favorite.)

It is truly astonishing how quickly it gets to the very seat of the trouble, the membranes of the throat, and stops the tickling at once. Soothing relief comes and heals the membranes and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing else for bronchial colds, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for 2½ ounces of Pinex with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.—Advertisement.

Vexed Father Gives His Consent and Elopers Wed

Lawrence, Oct. 16.—Sixteen-year-old Jennie Larcione of No. 113 Elm street and Frank Bevenintia, who eloped Sunday, were legally married following a court trial here in which the parent of the girl, at first vexed, gave his consent.

Last Sunday they decided to go to Boston but were unable to get married there on account of the minor's youth.

Exhausted, the pair came home and sought the forgiveness of Frank Larcione, father of Jennie, who had the pair arrested. In Juvenile Court here the case ended in a reconciliation effected by the judge.

Miller was held in $2,500, and Leon in $2,000 for the grand jury.

INDUSTRIAL RESEARCH LABORATORIES OF ARTHUR D. LITTLE, INC.

The Public Wants to Know— We Intend to Tell

Perhaps you have often wondered what that striking building is that, more like a modern college than a place of business, faces the river on the Charles River road.

Perhaps you knew it was the Arthur D. Little, Inc., Laboratories, the home of an organization of industrial chemists—one of the groups of men of science who did so many wonderful things in the war and who now are bringing about so many other marvelous accomplishments as to make us feel sure more than we ever have before of America's leadership in the world's industry.

"Can it be possible," we said, "for Industrial Chemistry to have made such amazing progress without its affecting most vitally the daily affairs of a department store?"

In the stress of highly competitive production, in the relative scarcity of raw products, in the mounting cost of labor, in the keenness to excel in America's specialty—quantity production—in the very skill of the chemist in evolving substitutes and less expensive ways of doing things—as well as finding better ways of doing things—how can the retailer always be sure that he is getting what he expected—how can he be sure that the merchandise he is selling to his customers will prove to be as represented?

And how can the customer know?

Only the chemist can tell!

The men who work out the secret processes of industry are the only men who can tell or approximate what the result of those processes will do—in terms of health—wear—service.

For several years we have not been content to take the word of mill or manufacturer, be they ever so well intentioned—as to whether, for example, a fabric was all wool—or whether it was fast dye.

We have gone to the chemist.

And when a fabric was not all wool we have refused to sell the goods; or if cotton really added merit to the fabric we have not hesitated to say so.

We have gone to the chemist for our guidance in making large purchases—for example, of hosiery and other apparel. So that, in addition to the keen eye and sensitive fingertips of the experienced buyer, we added the eternal verity of the test tube and the microscope.

Occasionally in the past few years you may have seen in our advertising—"all wool, tested by our consulting chemists." But we have felt that if our customers knew not only that we had retained an organization of chemists to test our merchandise, but that this organization was Arthur D. Little, Inc., their high standing in the profession and in the community, added to our 66 years of selling dependable merchandise, would add even more to the satisfaction the public has in trading at this store.

And so there is much pleasure in announcing that we have arranged with these laboratories for a much more extensive use of their highly skilled service. From time to time, as occasion arises and as interest in the subject justifies, we will publish the results of the tests, certified over the name of Arthur D. Little, Inc., who will have no other interest but to tell the truth about the hidden things in merchandise.

The public wants to be informed. We intend to tell.

We intend that there shall never go out of this store any merchandise which is not exactly as represented. We intend that merchandise bought at R. H. White Co. will give satisfaction.

We have such pride in our business that we want you to trade here not only because things usually cost less here, but because they are better.

If Too Thin Try Bitro-Phosphate

While excessive thinness might be attributed to various and subtle causes in different individuals, it is a well-known fact that the lack of phosphorus in the human system is very largely responsible for the condition.

It seems to be well established that this deficiency in phosphorus may now be met by the use of Bitro-Phosphate, which can be obtained from any good druggist in convenient tablet form.

In many instances the assimilation of this phosphate by the nerve tissue when produces a surprising change—nerve tension disappears, vigor and strength replace weakness and lack of energy and the whole body loses its ugly boldness and abrupt angles becoming enveloped in a glow of perfect health and beauty and the will and strength to be up and doing.

CAUTION—While Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for the relief of nervousness, general debility, etc., those taking it who do not desire to put on flesh should use extra care in avoiding fat-producing foods.

FINDS MISSING WIFE THROUGH AMERICAN

An article and picture in the Boston American were today the means of restoring Mrs. Anton Dycaus of No. 25 Woodman street, West Lynn, to her husband and baby.

The young woman was ill in the Carney Hospital, and because of her slight command of English was unable to tell the attendants where to find her husband. She had been missing since Saturday.

Sisters in the hospital recognized the patient from the picture of her appearing in several editions of the American last Tuesday. They also obtained her correct address, and the correct spelling of her name, and got in touch with the husband at once. He took her home today.

Mrs. Dycaus said she became ill Saturday while passing through South Boston. She sat down to rest, and was taken to the hospital by a friendly policeman.

American Lays Claim to Discovery of Perpetual Youth

Chicago, Oct. 16.—To America, and not France, belongs the honor of the discovery of the fountain of "perpetual youth," according to Dr. G. F. Lydston, eminent Chicago surgeon. He declares he had discovered the process of gland implantation in 1914. He claims to have made further progress in its development than that claimed by Dr. Serge Voronoff, the French scientist.

"I am grieved and angered," said Dr. Lydston, "that the laurels should go to my French [illegible] when they rightly belong to an American. The [illegible] irony of the thing is that Americans will not recognize a thing of this sort until it comes to them from abroad."

Dr. Lydston claimed even startling results than did Voronoff.

"My results," he said, "are startling, some of them have not yet ventured to in their entirety even to the world. It is obvious that I cannot give them to the public and was taken to the hospital by I cannot give them in detail. Suffice it to say that all of the [illegible]

YALE WELL SUPPLIED IN BACKS

Ellis Have Five Sets, Virtually All First String Men, to Put in Field

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Five sets of Yale backfield men all sets of rare quality and each of almost equal ability, constitute a portion—only a portion—of the sizable problem Boston College will face [illegible] in the Yale Bowl next Saturday.

Since the start of the season first [illegible] has changed on the failure of Head Coach A[illegible] name a first string [illegible] has stood a [illegible]

Major Frank Cavanaugh, coach Boston College [illegible] Mt. Morris, [illegible] made his [illegible] he stated it [illegible] quantity of [illegible] field mate [illegible] in individual calibre, the [illegible] coaches could do no better than [illegible] the first [illegible] season has been [illegible] the slight [illegible] truly [illegible]

YALE'S GREAT BACKS

"Hark [illegible] C[illegible] on the l[illegible] of what [illegible] are justly [illegible] no denying that Yale [illegible] derful early [illegible] has at least five or six men who appear every bit as [illegible] the Harvard crew. I just tried [illegible] ting them after Lalloche, Kempton-Murphy, and three of them [illegible] demonstrated what they could do in a broken field Yale would have five sets of backs against North Ca[illegible] and I couldn't for the life of [illegible] which set was the best. I've never [illegible] such a wealth of [illegible] field material."

Another question relating to the Yale eleven, which has risen [illegible] minds of those who have seen the Yale team in action, was answered [illegible] by the Boston College coach. This concerned Yale's ability or method of launching a rushing attack.

FAVORS DIRECT PASS.

Al Sharpe, who coaching [illegible] before the war, is [illegible] Eastern exponent of the direct pass method of starting [illegible] plays.

This method which calls upon the centre to pass the ball directly to the man who is to make the play, [illegible] the quarterback [illegible] to get into [illegible] possible speed [illegible] standing [illegible] strength given [illegible] direct pass [illegible] backs. Many believe that the success of the pass and the handling of the ball [illegible] has full [illegible] and the [illegible] the man who is to [illegible]

Opposed to this method [illegible] a rush in the [illegible] pass and then [illegible] delayed pass [illegible] snaps the ball to [illegible] who, in turn, relays it [illegible] after a delay, to [illegible] make the rush.

USES BOTH STYLES.

This method [illegible] the quarterback [illegible] does not permit the early speed which is attained [illegible] But—[illegible] the quarterback, [illegible] concerned, takes it [illegible] and then delivers [illegible] it develops [illegible] thought and action [illegible] of the opposition, which [illegible] ing gains.

In 1916 under [illegible] largely depended upon direct and delayed passes, [illegible] whether Coach [illegible] adhering to Yale, would [illegible] to adhere to his direct pass system or resort to a[illegible] entirely.

According to [illegible] it appears the [illegible] has [illegible] direct passing [illegible] ends and [illegible] eleven. In inaugurating its running attack, can [illegible] play all three of those methods, [illegible] mastery, speed and power.

LAROCHE IS FINE FORM.

Cavanaugh stated that Chet LaRoche, the Dartmouth boy who gained much fame as the Kit quarterback in the Lafayette and Yale-Harvard games [illegible] being better football than [illegible] to his career. In 1918 [illegible] used as the field general of the Elis, but this season Coach [illegible] allowing him to carry the ball and thus far he has proved one of the most consistent and, often times spectacular of the Yale ground gainers.

Certain faults in the [illegible] of Captain Cadahan of the Yale team were noted by Cavanaugh when observing Yale's work last Saturday. Lack of proper height in passing [illegible] ball to Yale punters and drop kickers was the outstanding trouble with the Eli leader. This fault should be easily remedied

Cavanaugh would not estimate Boston's chances in next Saturday's New Haven game. The loss of Halloran, whose play featured at the Stadium two weeks ago, made a hole in the B. C. backfield which he now is endeavoring to fill. Cav did admit he was hopeful, however.

MET BRIDE WHEN MEMBER OF TEAMS HE HELPED BEAT

Morris Ruth, second baseman of the World's Champion Cincinnati Reds, and Mrs. Ruth, who was Miss Edna Morton of Chicago. Ruth first met his wife while he was playing with the Chicago Americans some years ago. The couple, after a honeymoon in Atlantic City, will reside in Philadelphia.

CORBETT'S COLUMN

[illegible] advent of the football season has reopened the old, old quiz: Who was the greatest backfield man of all time?"

And at once a score of names are placed in nomination.

Out in the West there is the belief that there never was—nor can there ever be—a greater plunging or running backfield man than was Willie Heston of [illegible] gan eleven of more [illegible] fifteen years ago; Heston of [illegible] Fame. Heston, the un[illegible]

Heston could hit a line harder [illegible] any man that ever lived,' [illegible] tell you beyond the Alleghenies. He was uncanny in the power that he could put into his plunges. Through all the years that he reigned at Michigan [illegible] opponents was Mr. [illegible] could with [illegible] power [illegible] him when he dove for the line. If they couldn't.

Again and again [illegible] triple barrelled men were placed in the pathway of Heston—but he split those lines asunder and bulged along for heavy gains. Every time he hit a line that line crashed. Men almost twice his size tried to throw him back—but none ever halted him.

As an open field runner Heston was supreme. He was as elusive as a panther, shifting [illegible] his size in any [illegible] of football, and he could start and [illegible] like an eel. Only one man ever was able to dump him with any degree of success when he was racing through broken fields, and that man was Walter Eckersall, of Chicago. But Eckie turned the trick not by tackling Heston from in front, but by running [illegible] and diving for him from behind, one of the [illegible]

Eastern folks are to-day [illegible] telling [illegible] They are a [illegible] to demonstrate that Ted Coy, of Yale, was the greatest of [illegible] Personally, I [illegible] not sure whether it's Jim [illegible] of Carlisle or Eddie Mahan, of Harvard, to whom the honor of being the greatest of [illegible] should go. There was nothing that Thorpe couldn't do on a football [illegible] and [illegible]

Mahan was there anything that Mahan couldn't do just about as well as Thorpe," reports the other.

They played in different eras and they never played against each other. So there is no chance to compare them in competitive play. But the prevailing [illegible] of expert opinion seems to pass the glory of being the greatest halfback—in every branch of play—to the brilliant Indian.

"Mahan was fast—but Thorpe was a bit faster," tis said. "Mahan was a husky youth, gifted with [illegible] strength—but Thorpe had it on him a little there. Mahan was a punter of remarkable ability—but none can say, in all fairness, that he had anything on Thorpe. The way that boy could boot the pigskin was almost miraculous.

"He wouldn't shoot a fifty or sixty-yard kick every so often—he'd do it nearly every time he kicked. And he gave to the ball a loft and a twist that made it possible for his own men to get down under it when it descended—and made it, because of its twisting, a mighty difficult thing to handle.

"Mahan perhaps was a little better than Thorpe in dodging runners—but that is his only 'edge.' For Thorpe could hit a line with more power than Mahan, and he averaged more yardage on his drives at the line than did the Crimson halfback.

"Thorpe, furthermore, was Mahan's superior [illegible] kind. He could drop them over the bars from any angle and any distance with unerring accuracy. And the final stamp of greatness was [illegible] Thorpe's defensive play [illegible] all the backs that I have played the game with Thorpe easily was the best in the trick of fathoming the opposition runners."

The summing up of the Thorpe advocates is in the majority belief, but there are countless thousands who always will insist that Mahan was the better; there are legions who will say that Heston was supreme; still more who will place the laurel on Coy.

And the question "who was the greatest halfback" never will be satisfactorily answered. But as long as football lasts it will recur each season—and provoke again and again the never-ending arguments.

TOM THORNTON TALLIES TWICE FOR TUFTS TEAM

Coach Whelan changed tactics and put the Tufts football players through a regular game with the scrubs Although the second team furnished hard opposition the varsity scored two touchdowns. Tom Thornton (son of Somers the It pn was responsible for all the points, tearing off two 40-yard runs through the entire scrub team.

Ellis threw a score into the regulars in the third quarter when the former quarterback [illegible] a forward pass and raced to the 5-yard line. Linsell, formerly of Medford High, and Rousseau, who played on the R. I. A. T. C. team at Harvard, showed up well for the scrubs.

The big surprise of the session was the way Franklin Smith, from Dean Academy, handled the varsity. It is almost certain that Coach Whelan will start him against Dorwich, as Chet Sanford is in no condition to play, his injured ankle being badly swollen.

MENTAL STRAIN HARDEST FOR STAR GOLFERS

By the mental strain, of course, is meant the nerve strain as well because the latter strain is caused by the mental condition of the player. When a player is playing in tip-top shape or getting away all his shots, generally speaking, his mental condition is perfect

On the other hand let things go wrong and the nerves strain pops up and if the player does not overcome it the nerves begin to shatter, and then ex[illegible]s game

VETERANS AFFECTED MOST.

The mental strain attacks senior players more often than the young sters. One reason for this is that the older p[illegible]ers realize the importance of every shot and [illegible] to take any we bits of [illegible] more later into their game to [illegible] on the [illegible] conditions.

Youth, on the other hand, cares not for the hook or the slice as long as he can get away his next shot and he has just that added dash to his game to offset the mental strain. The youngster has nothing to lose and all to gain, where the older player has everything to lose and nothing to gain.

Francis Ouimet never seems to be under any mental strain, whatsoever, as he showed during his celebrated match with Vardon and Hay when only a [illegible] took the two Britishers into camp. Frank is one player who retains his youthful mental attitude when playing, and even when his game is not just going right he is the [illegible] opponent as was the case at Brae-Burn in the open championship

ALWAYS FINISHES STRONG.

Though he wanted to win, his art left him when he was considered strongest on the greens but did the mental strain tell on Vardon? Not in a hundred years, as he finished with his [illegible] 68.

The very next week he [illegible] at Field at the Country Club, playing brilliant golf.

Players, of course, can play under a mental strain and come through as has been the case in more than one golf match. This is often the case when the professionals play against amateurs, as the professionals have the responsibility of winning on their shoulders when the amateurs have not.

Still, with all the mental strain, golf has been recommended by doctors as a wonderful medicine for nervous people or to build up patients after a nervous breakdown. The reason for this being that in golf one has to get control of his mental condition or he is lost as far as his game is concerned.

In order to play golf and play it well the mental condition has to be under control; that being the case the player's nerves are always in first-class shape and he will relax and play with confidence. Now, if he breaks under the mental strain he stiffens up and his game likewise suffers, his nerves shatter and what is left of his game is lost.

Chick Evans has control of his mental condition up to the green, and when it exits; also that smile and carefree style he has up to the green

PROFESSIONALS HIT HARD.

The mental strain was noticed at the open meet at Brae-Burn among the professionals. Jock Hutchinson is a player who is always under a strong mental strain, and even the sterling p[illegible]yer, Jim Barnes often performs under a strong mental pull.

A good way to keep the mental condition under control is to play each shot one f[illegible] without thinking of past ones or future ones, or, in other words after posting the sunt forget it and let the past bury the dead.

Champion Herron, the [illegible] is without any mental pull as he showed at Cleveland. In his match with Jones in the finals he played a shot that looked like a beauty to land on a deep trap and right here is where the champion showed that he was under no mental strain whatever as he did not change one bit in his actions.

His ball, to judge from his appearance, might as well have been on the green. His ball laying in the trap did not worry him as he expected to make the next shot good, which he did

SHOULD PLAY FOR GAME.

One bad shot does no, make a game or a drive caught in a trap, just make the next shot count and don't worry And your scores will be lower

Miss Hpnnewell, the well-known Wellesley player, who is in Europe, has been showing some of our English golfers how the [illegible] is done in the U. S. A. and in good [illegible] She is spending the A[illegible]umn season at Nice [illegible] over the well-known links located there

IRA DERN OUT TO WIN MIDDLEWEIGHT TITLE

Ira Dern of Salt Lake City will make an attempt this evening to wrest the world's middleweight championship from Waino Ketonen at the Grand Opera House and to restore the title to the Mormon capital, where it was held so long by Mike Yokel. The fact that Dern has been coached by Will Thornton, who trained Yokel for years and who handled Ketonen in several of the latter's matches, is considered by many means that the newcomer will have an advantage in this respect over the Finn.

Dern has never lost a fall in the six years he has been in competition, and with his rangy power and his natural ability he will prove one of the toughest nuts the Ketonen has been called on to crack in a long time.

The [illegible] to go out of three falls, with a match between Cyclone Hess and Charkey Renke as a preliminary.

POLLARD, OLD BROWN STAR, TO PLAY WITH PENN

Philadelphia, Oct. 16. Fritz Pollard, rated the greatest backfield man ever turned out by Brown, will don a red and blue uniform on Coach "Allie" Miller's scrub team. Pollard matriculated in the medical school at Pennsylvania a short time ago and decided to join the squad today. He has another year of varsity football but will be ineligible this season because of the one-year residence rule.

BARNEY ADAIR BOXES DUFFY AT LOWELL

By JACK CONWAY.

When Leo Plutocrat Flynn has a real fighter, he is always the busiest youth in the grand old game of seat. It is only natural then that Barney Adair should be taking on matches as fast as he can defeat his opponents.

This rugged youth will perform at the Crescent A. C. of Lowell tonight. He'll have Jimmy Duffy of New York as an opponent in a twelve-round contest. As Duff[illegible] has been [illegible] ning consistently, it looks as though the Lowell fans will witness an evening of action.

Adair is a rugged, two-fisted fighter. He's a good attack[illegible] because he's forcing the issue every minute he's in the ring. He'll take a wallop as well as give one.

Duffy also has a fine reputation. He has snapped [illegible] with Leonard, Dundee, Tendler and Britton and is not worry[illegible] about the outcome of tonight's affair

At the Casino A. C. of Framingham tonight, George Robinson, Cambridge middle-weight, will exchange blows with Pal Reid of the Navy. The twelve-round contest [illegible] has been one of the most active performers at local clubs during the past year. He will [illegible] style of mixing plus a knowledge of the fine points of the boxing game have enabled him to dispose of most of his opponents.

Reid has an idea his punch will enable him to beat Robinson. Pal is known as a hard hitter and packs a wallop which he repeatedly has opportunity. He is [illegible] training with Young Shears and also he will not be hampered much by Robinson's left jab.

Joe Kagan, the Dorchester middle weight, and Art Magill of Attleboro, will head the [illegible] at the Casino A. C. of Lynn tonight. Frank Dane says Magill fought a lot of winning bouts in the Art's place and that he'll prove too shifty for Kagan.

Young Abrams is training at Diamond Hill. It is for a twelve round bout with Johnny Woods which will be staged at Mechanics Building next Monday night under the auspices of the Pequot A. A. The match has been hanging fire since last Summer and it's [illegible] to be a [illegible]

All are [illegible] favorite in the east but [illegible] experts believe Abrams' [illegible] speed and knowledge of [illegible] will enable him to [illegible] the [illegible] opponent.

Nate Siegel of Revere [illegible] and Jerry Dugan of Lynn [illegible] Dugan's [illegible] that won't [illegible] in a [illegible] contest at the [illegible] A. A. tonight. In the last bout Dugan was awarded the decision after a strong mix-up. It is the only decision that Siegel has lost since returning from overseas.

Charley Chappell of the [illegible] and Johnny Gilmore of the city [illegible] furnish plenty of action in the other ten-round bout. [illegible] Gilmore [illegible] Chappell [illegible] Shepard [illegible] pretty [illegible] Chappell [illegible] Mike Morphy and Will Gentile will be the [illegible] an eight-round contest

Jack Bussey comes to bat with the announcement that Tommy Elms is prepared to give battle to all comers. Elms is a hard-hitting youth, as well as a clever boxer. He's particularly anxious to get a [illegible] with Charley Parker

Johnny Cuddy is going to stage another boxing show in his open-air arena at Lawrence a week from Saturday. Johnny Dundee [illegible] will probably be one of the principals.

THIS is the anniversary of the execution in 1793 of Marie Antoinette, Queen of France and wife of the ill-fated Louis XVI. It was Marie who made the ill-advised remark when told her people were starving for want of bread that they should eat cake. She went to the guillotine bravely.

The Record Well

THE deepest known well in the world is believed to be one in Upper Silesia. It is a diamond drill hole in a coal field, and goes down 7,350 feet. But according to the U. S. Geological Survey there is a well being sunk about fifteen miles west of Pittsburgh that may go deeper.

'BELGIAN MIKE' GETS IN AND 'IN SOFT'

Love of Name Gilhooley Leads Rich Woman to Adopt Stowaway

New York, Oct. 16.—Michael Gilhooley, sixteen, and champion stowaway of all the oceans yet discovered, will now dwell amid gold lace and potted palms. It's the Vanderbilt Hotel for Mike. You can see him there today, bob nailed, shoes, great big grin, hitched up belt and everything, because Mrs. Marian Gilhooley Curry, wife of an importer, who lives at the hotel, went to Ellis Island to get him.

At the Battery she met him with a limousine, and this regard little tramp, who has taken five trips across the Atlantic with the idea of becoming an American, took his final stowaway trip up Fifth avenue on billowy cushions.

Mrs. Curry said that the fact that the child's name was Gilhooley had caused her to adopt him.

"I had set aside a little money," said Mrs. Curry, "to use for a memorial to my father, Judge Patrick Milton Gilhooley of New Jersey, who died a year ago, and when I read of this boy I thought it wasn't right that any person with the name of Gilhooley should be denied the right to enter the gates of America, and so I am going to adopt him and give him an education, and allow him to study as he likes so he may make the very most of himself."

LAWSON IS GIVEN PLACE ON TICKET

The Ballot Law Commission has sustained George H. Lawson, independent candidate in his fight for a place on the ticket in the Twelfth Suffolk Representative District. Representative Daniel J. The board also ruled that David Perry Rice of Rockland, independent candidate for State Senator in the Norfolk-Plymouth District, might put the words "non-partisan, lower taxrate" on the ballot opposite his name.

The members of the New England Council of the American Association of Advertising Agencies are now entrusted with caring for the advertising of over four hundred different concerns, among whom are such representative Manufacturers, Jobbers and Retailers as

It is suggestive to note that very many of these prominent Advertisers have been our clients for more than a quarter century, and anyone who desires to determine what advertising has done and is doing is invited to communicate with them direct or to confer with the Agent who has the honor of handling their advertising.

The New England Council believes that as New England men have always led in every field of effort, that there is a large opportunity for other New England Manufacturers, Jobbers and Retailers to increase their prestige, to enlarge their sales and to ensure their profits by utilizing wisely conceived and carefully executed advertising.

We are very proud of the record we have made in co-operating with so many of New England's leading business men and are always willing to confer with others to determine if it would pay them to make an investment in advertising.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN OCTOBER 16, 1919 BOSTON

Showing One Senator Got Separated From Facts

The White House has given out a list of the gifts to the President and Mrs. Wilson while in Europe. They are not particularly important in value. They do not justify the statement which Senator Penrose made concerning them.

If the published list of these gifts contained them all, it is amazing that Mr. Penrose could have exaggerated their value so greatly.

We shall have to be careful when we base another editorial upon the assumption that a United States Senator will not use his official position to send broadcast through the country a gross exaggeration which, if true, would be disturbing to the public mind and injurious to the respect which the President of the United States ought to have to make his leadership effective.

Men in Our Navy Are Clearly Entitled to Living Pay

The question of living pay for men required in the service of their country is reaching all departments, and cannot much longer be ignored with safety to the State.

The demobilization of the Naval Reserve from active service has in many instances reduced from temporary promotions junior officers in the regular Navy, who thus must meet a greatly increased cost of living with a shrunken income.

It is hard enough for the man with a stationary income to weather these rough economic seas. To expect competent naval officers to do it with reduced incomes is expecting too much.

It is against the traditions of the Navy for officers to resign, especially in the shadow of a war. But when the alternative is penury in the home, or hopeless indebtedness, traditions have to go.

Hence resignations are being turned in—heartbreakingly, but under spur of inexorable necessity.

Quite apart from the question of the personal unfairness of these hardships for men who have just shown such signal proofs of competency, the essential fact is that the United States cannot afford to lose good officers from its Navy at present.

With civilization still wabbling on the crater of a smoking volcano, our Navy is an indispensable insurance. Not fewer but more warships, with full complements of trained officers and crews, are demanded by elemental national prudence.

No other investment in preparedness equals this in true economy or in the feeling of security which it inspires.

The Congress will, therefore, do well to act promptly upon the request of Secretary Daniels and Admiral Sims for a sufficient advance in naval pay at least to cover the increased cost of living.

Do You Want Your Friends to "Put On Mourning" for You?

If You Don't, Tell Them So While You Are Alive

Copyright, 1919, Star Company.

Is the custom of wearing mourning for the dead a wise and desirable fashion?

Should we feel it necessary to publish or advertise our grief for someone whose fortune it has been to precede us on the journey we shall all take sooner or later?

During the war there was in European countries a general movement to dispense with mourning clothes because of the depressing effect it was thought to have on those who might later be called upon to serve in arms.

A discussion of this question—a curious one for fiction—is made one of the incidents of a striking story by Dana Burnett in the October number of Good Housekeeping. The heroine absolutely refuses to put on the conventional garb of mourning after the death of her father. What happened as a result of her determination is very interesting.

Originally the wearing of mourning costume was not for the purpose of expressing grief, but to give notice that the person so dressed had been defiled by contact with the dead.

Nor is black the universal color for mourning garb. In China the relatives wear clothes entirely of white. On the Gold Coast of Africa the mourning color is brilliant red. Among the Aruntas of Australia the mourners smear themselves with white clay during the ceremonial period.

The history of death and the ceremonies accompanying it forms almost a literature by itself, including strange and fantastic customs, some beautiful and some not so pleasant, like the "towers of silence," where the bodies are left to the vultures; or the Hindu practice which, before its abolition under English rule, required the widow of the dead husband to herself submit to death by burning on his pyre.

When and why a particular garb was chosen to indicate grief has never been determined.

Why should it be necessary for a person to announce sorrow by a visible badge? Is it not really a desecration of sentiment to make of it a public proclamation?

For the poor it is not infrequently a real hardship to be obliged to buy the clothing that indicates their sorrow.

Would it not be wiser and better that the fashion of wearing mourning clothes be entirely done away with?

The world is coming to look upon death from a new viewpoint. Scores of books are being printed and hundreds of articles are being written by men and women of standing and sense that indicate a changing idea of the hereafter and the door through which we enter it.

A century from now we may envy rather than mourn the one who goes in our advance into the great beyond.

It is almost certain that before that time we shall have ceased to make a public display of sorrow by an especial sort of dress.

More Truth Than Poetry

FOLKS AND WEATHER

By S. E. KISER

SOME folks look like cloudy weather,
The cold, dampish kind, I mean;
Never seems to matter whether
They have oily hands or clean.
I have heard rich people grumblin'
With no reason to be sad,
And I guess a lot of stumblin'
Where the goin's kind of bad
Wouldn't happen if we'd learn
To look out at every turn
For the things that might be helpin' —
Big and small—to make us glad.

SOME folks, unconcerned and lazy,
Never make a fuss at all;
They're a good deal like the hazy,
Drowsy weather in the Fall;
Just go driftin' on and dreamin',
Free from all regret or dread,
Seldom lookin' back, and seemin'
Not to care what's on ahead;
Have no taste for work or play,
And at last they drift away.
Few to miss 'em or remember
What they ever did or said.

SOME folks make me think of sunny,
Dewy mornings in the Spring;
And you couldn't buy with money
The glad hopefulness they bring;
Seem to brace you up and cheer you
Just by sayin' "Howdy do?"
And you like to have 'em near you,
They're so brisk and friendly, too!
Wouldn't this old world be grand
If we all could understand
How to come, when clouds have lingered,
Like the sunshine breakin' through?

Editor Boston American:

Will you kindly accept the thanks of a grateful reader for your timely information about the Army Sales "by mail"?

I am a resident of Arlington, and I say it with no pride in my present state of mind toward this town. There may be some rich residents here to whom this sale does not appeal, but I am a struggling mother of a young family, seven in number, and only one pay envelope, meagre at that, and I know I have many neighbors here around me in like circumstances to whom this information is a godsend.

We have been looking with longing eyes at our more fortunate sisters in neighboring cities and towns who have had the army supplies at their doors, and we have been hoping against hope that Arlington would do something for her struggling class, who have to stretch one dollar to make it do the work of two, but up to the present date our hopes are ungratified.

I wish this might wake up some of the sleepy officials to a sense of duty toward their citizens and help them to get along instead of taking every dollar from them and giving nothing in return.

With heartfelt thanks to the workingman's friend, the Boston American. I will sign myself

A DAILY READER.

RABBI S. Wise.

NEW YORK City.
MY DEAR Doctor.
I READ in the paper.
WHERE YOU stood on the platform.
ON SUNDAY last.
AND LOOKED into the faces.
OF YOUR congregation.
AND SAID to them.
THAT IF they were sore.
ABOUT WHAT you had said.
OF JUDGE Elbert H. Gary.
THEY COULD have your resignation.
AND I want to tell you.
YOU'RE TAKING an awful chance.
WHEN YOU do a thing like that.
UNLESS YOU know.
THAT IT'S all right.
AND NOTHING'S going to happen.
AND THE reason I'm writing.
TO TELL you this.
IS BECAUSE one time.
I WAS the editor.
OF A daily paper.
AND WHEN the owners would pan me.
FOR SAYING something.
THAT THEY didn't like.
I USED to rise up.
AND SAY to them.
"IF YOU don't like it.
"GO GET another editor."
AND IT always went.
AND THEN one time.
WE WERE having a meeting.
AND THEY started something.
AND THEY were heckling me.
AND I up and told them.
THEY COULD have their old job.
IF THEY weren't satisfied.
AND I stood up.
AND THREW my shoulders back.
AND INHALED.
AND SWELLED out my chest.
AND A man with whiskers.
WHO WAS the biggest stockholder.
LOOKED RIGHT at me.
AND SAID.
"WE HAVE hired another editor."
AND WITH that.
I EXHALED.
AND LET my chest back.
AND ROUNDED my shoulders.
AND WENT out of the room.
AND WHEN it happened.
WAS ALONG in October.
AND I didn't get work.
UNTIL AFTER Christmas.
AND THE reason I'm writing you.
IS BECAUSE I like you.
AND A job's a job.
AND I want to warn you.
IF THERE are any fellows.
IN YOUR congregation.
WHO HAVE thick whiskers.
YOU WANT to be careful.
BECAUSE YOU never can tell.
WHAT THEY'RE thinking about.
UNTIL THEY say it.
AND ONE of the reasons.
THAT I went to work.
FOR MR. Hearst.
IS BECAUSE he's clean shaven.
AND I can always tell.
WHEN MY chest expansion.
IS AT the danger point.

I THANK you.

WAR BLAMED FOR DARING PARISIAN FASHIONS

Restraint Cast Aside — See Boston Sunday Advertiser Next Week

THE war has been blamed for almost everything. Now they are blaming it for the daring fashions which, direct from Paris, are causing no little furore on this side of the water.

Never before has the present generation seen such extremes in brevity of skirts and in scantiness and flimsiness of bodice, even from the most extravagant of Parisian couturieres.

France, after nearly a century of good taste as the fashion centre of the world, has at last cast aside all restraint, and appears today garbed in clothes remarkable more for their absence than anything else. What is the reason for it?

A Columbia University professor thinks he has discovered the answer. As he sees it, the shortage of men, caused by the war, is leading women of war-ravaged countries to adopt any and all eccentricities of dress which will attract to their side eligible males.

Professor Alon Bement, the author of this story, discusses it in interesting fashion in next Sunday's Boston Advertiser.

The exploits of America's master criminal, the arch-thief, exposed during the past few weeks through exclusive articles in the Boston Sunday Advertiser, have led hundreds to question the means by which the man responsible for hundreds of ingenious crimes has managed to hold in his thrall the scores of assistants who aid him daily in his clever crimes.

This week's instalment of the crime series explains how the master mind, through the use of drugs, has reduced his victims to a point where he can count upon their obedience to every command. He owns his wretched servants body and soul.

Read the story of his fiendish methods in Sunday's Boston Advertiser. It is always prudent to place an order for your copy with your newsdealer early in the week.

Dr. Francis X. Dercum, nervous disease specialist, chosen to care for President Wilson during the latter's present illness, is perhaps the one person in the entire country whose wide experience and careful study have made him a complete walking encyclopedia of information regarding nervous prostration and its treatment.

Dr. Dercum is the author of a book dealing with the cure of this affliction, and in view of his present connection with the White House the public at large will be interested deeply in what he has to say.

Interesting scientific experiments have proved the great importance of large, broad bodies in carrying people along the road to longevity. Science has found that the broad, squat, stocky person, whose body is longer than his legs, has a better chance of attaining a ripe old age than his long-limbed, slender neighbor.

Most of us belong to one of these classes. Whichever description fits you, you will be interested in the Sunday Advertiser's special article on this important subject, which appears in next Sunday's magazine section. Be sure to read the Sunday Advertiser. Otherwise there will be much that you will miss.

Interstitial Gland Again Study Boswell Excuse for Robbery

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1919.

Dr. Voronoff says positively that he will give "revived youth to mankind." Vital energy depends, it seems, on the interstitial gland. When that wears out with old age, vitality goes, and man sinks into the grave.

A new interstitial gland planted in the system, will start producing vitality, and man will go on as energetic as ever—so says Dr. Voronoff, and he believes it.

The difficulty at first was to find a young human interstitial gland to plant in an old man. Each young man of course values his interstitial gland, even if he doesn't know exactly what it is, and would not part with it, as parting would mean death.

In China you can hire plenty of young men to die. For a fixed sum they would sell you the interstitial gland and the entire body. They piously use the money thus earned to care for aged parents. Men condemned to death in China have been able to buy substitutes.

At present, Dr. Voronoff, in experiments actually made on human beings, is using the interstitial glands of monkeys. The monkey's blood is like that of a man, as the monkey's skeleton in the number of bones and their character exactly reproduces that of a man. The interstitial gland taken from a young monkey, planted in an old man, grows and makes the old man seem young.

It is just possible that one of these days there may be an interstitial gland exchange established in China, and a regular price quoted for young men willing to be made old for a fixed sum.

It is more likely, however, that a sufficient number of experiments will show that in certain things Providence is not to be defeated in its plans.

There have been many schemes for determining the sex of children before birth, but nature attends to the matter. Boys and girls come along, year after year, a few more girls than boys, except in war, when boys are more numerous.

Providence has had people young, then old, and Providence will probably continue to do that, in spite of Dr. Voronoff and the monkey's interstitial gland.

Nature has no desire, and would be foolish, indeed, to keep permanently young and active the extremely poor samples of human beings manufactured thus far.

The house where Boswell was born is to be sold. Let this remind you to get "Boswell's Life of Johnson" at the library, or if too busy for many volumes of intensely interesting study of an interesting human being, get John Morley's life of Johnson in the English Men of Letters series, and read the numerous extracts from Boswell selected by Morley.

Boswell worked a miracle, in that he took the real genius of Samuel Johnson, which was conversation, and preserved it for all time. Without that conversation Johnson would have been forgotten.

Of the average great writer, we know less of himself and more of his writing as time passes. In Samuel Johnson's case we know more of his personality, less and less of what he wrote, as he fades into the past.

Bishop McKim of Tokio, an Episcopalian doing noble work in Japan, says it is all right to take Shantung from China and give it to Japan, because if China got it back she would simply barter Shantung to some other nation within two years.

Some need to say that slavery was a good thing, because the poor blacks wouldn't know what to do with themselves if set free. And once, as Henry Ward Beecher pointed out, a prayer book was condemned because a picture in the front showed Christ, with poor mothers and children, and among others a negro in chains at His feet. The negro in chains was said to be propaganda against slavery. Those were slave days, and the negro was taken out of the prayer book. Some times even religion is too conservative.

The French get at things more quickly than we do in America. President Poincare has signed a decree of general demobilization. Over there they haven't a situation complicated by the whiskey proposition.

If we had demobilization here now, that would mean two and a half months of unlimited whiskey selling, which would be a bad thing for the country. Those that control demobilization are on the prohibition side, and not in a hurry. In addition the President's illness may make it impossible for him to reach a definite decision before January and the fatal day, making the United States dry for thirty years at least.
